ANDY ANDREWS

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — What bothers conservation farmer David Horning is seeing the telltale dirt and silt on piles of snow alongside road drainage ditches in the wintertime.

That's a sure sign of erosion — erosion that could have been prevented if farmers would not moldboard plow late and would use some kind of cover crop.

With this in mind, this Chester County farmer takes time every year to make sure that erosion is contained on his farm by using cover crops and ensuring no plowing is done in the winter season.

Many farmers who don't use a cover crop ignore the fact that, as a result of the bare topsoil, tons of good farm soil are being "blown away," said Horning.

At this year's Chester County Crops Day, Horning, 25, manager of DH Lone Hill Farm, was honored as 1994 Conservation Farmer of the Year.

Intensive use of cover crops has been a consistent practice at DH Lone Hill Farm. Together with wife Tracy and daughter Lindsey, 6 mos., and David's parents Donald and Joyce, Horning manages about 67 acres at the home farm just south of Honey Brook. He rents an additional 75 acres for a total of 133 tillable.

Dairying is the mainstay at DH Lone Hill Farm. The Horning family take care of 60 registered and ID grade Holstein, in addition to some Red and Whites. There are about 50 replacement calves in the herd. The Pa. DHIA herd average for the farm stands at about 20,000 pounds, 3.7f, 3.2p, for a herd total of 685 pounds fat and 624 pounds protein.

David Horning said a "boyhood interest" drew him to raising the Red and White portion of the herd. "It's something that always intrigued me," said Horning. The original Red and White, on the 352-day lactation, recorded 30,000 pounds of milk, he said.

For his dairy, he looks for cows that have good production and good overall health, with adequate udders and good feet and legs. For his conservation practices, Horn-

Lancaster Conservation District Honors Farm Managers

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) -- Conservation was evident in almost every facet of the four farms. Photos of clean fields, farmland, and homesteads "spoke about conservation on their own," said slide narrator Gerald Heistand, assistant administrator/ Chesapeake Bay Program.

The Rohrer family, Manor Township, were honored with the Outstanding Cooperator Award Thursday evening at the 44th annual Lancaster County Conservation District banquet at Yoder's Restaurant.

At the banquet, the district offered a slide presentation "tour" of the Rohrer Farms, located west of Millersville along Blue Rock Road. Altogether, four farm managers were honored for work in conservation.

According to Heistand, Wilmer Rohrer purchased the original farmland in 1944, milking a dozen cows. The land needed a lot of work — Wilmer discovered gutters from a wheat/barley field that had 10-inch trees and "you could have buried a car in them." Rohrer closed up the holes and reworked the fields into strips.

Pa. Celebrates Ag Day, Confirms Brosius As Secretary

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Acting Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius had just finished his lunch as the honored guest at the Ag Day luncheon, held Tuesday at the Captiol, when an acquaintance stepped up to congratulate him.

The Senate had just made his cabinet post official, confirming the appointment of the Chester County mushroom producer as the new head of the state's Department of Agriculture.

Appropriately enough, Secretary Brosius had, just a short time before, welcomed the large group gathered in the Rotunda of the East Wing of the Capitol building, praising the productivity of the American farmer and agriculture's vast contribution to Pennsylvania's economy as the state's largest industry.

"Each of our farmers today feeds 129 people, 97 of them in the United States and 32 of them abroad," Secretary Brosius told the Rotunda assembly. "Agricul-

Delmarva Broiler

EDISON, NJ
MARCH 22, 1995

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light and unaggressive. Seller offerings were fully adequate to ample for prompt delivery and remained generally slow in clearing. Live supplies were moderate; weights remained mixed in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were reduced in some instances, but still remained very heavy. Less than truck-lot asking prices were 1 cent lower at 45 to 56 cents. Trade sentiment was weak and unsettled. In the parts complex, volumes varied from plant to plant, but all items were fully sufficient to handle the limited buying interest.

In a recent University of Wisconsin lactation study, cows fed quality-selected WL 322HQ alfalfa produced four more pounds of milk per day than cows consuming a widely grown non-HQ variety. This additional milk production came at no sacrifice in milk composition and resulted in significantly greater yields of both fat and protein from the cows fed WL 322HQ.

•

For a dairyman milking 100 cows, this increased milk production - due solely to WL 322HQ being used in the ration - could generate as much as $20,000 in additional income.

•

We've put WL 322HQ to the test and the results are in: WL HQ alfalfas provide dairymen with the best returns in the business.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wednesday March 22, 1995

Wheat prices were slightly higher on export expectations and fund buying on the board. Corn prices were supported by improved export de- mand and lower corn production estimates out of Africa. Soybean prices continued to decline on active bean harvest in Brazil. Wheat 2 to 6 cents higher. Corn unchanged to 3 cents higher. Sorghum unchanged to 2 cents lower. Soybeans 1 to 3 cents lower. Export sales, though steady, have been small this week for wheat. However, optimism for China to tender soon offered some support to wheat prices. Fund buying on the wheat board gave a boost to prices. Corn prices firmed by Taiwan's purchase but reports that Africa's corn production estimate was lowered to 4.33 million tonnes pushed prices moderately higher. Good progress made in Brazil's bean harvest continued to weight on U.S. bean prices. Light export interests limited price declines.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MARCH 27-APRIL 2, 1995

DOCTORS' DAY, MARCH 30.

ALL FOOLS DAY

Nearly everyone has been caught on the receiving end of an April Fool's joke at least once. Young and old alike enjoy playing practical jokes and sending others on foolish errands. It seems the custom has been around forever. Although its origins are hazy, many folklorists believe the tradition may stem from France in 1582 when the Gregorian calendar moved New Year's Day from March 25 to January 1. Those first April Fools got caught by the calendar, rather than friends. In France, the person fooled is called a poisson d'avril, literally, an April fish. Anyone who has ever been "fished in" by a practical joke will know how they feel.

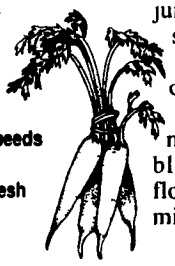
He is not a wise man who cannot play the fool on occasion. — English proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

Check birdhouses for damage and see to their spring cleaning before the tenants arrive for the season.

SNOWPEA AND CARROT SALAD

- 2 cups fresh snowpeas, cut diagonally
- 2 medium carrots, cut in matchsticks
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons sesame oil
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon sunflower seeds
- 1/2 teaspoon chopped fresh mint



Simmer vegetables in water for 3 to 5 minutes, until barely done. Drain and rinse under cold water. Dry on paper towel. Combine lemon juice, sesame oil, and soy sauce; mix well. Toast sunflower seeds in oven at 300° F until golden brown, about 5 minutes. Dress vegetables and toss with sunflower seeds and chopped mint. Serve hot or cold.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Snow in April is manure; snow in March devours.

If the first three days in April be foggy, Rain in June will make the lanes boggy.

If it thunders on All Fools' Day, It will bring good crops of corn and hay.

Thunder in spring, Cold will bring.

OPINION

Strange Devices

Today, imagine what it would be like to show your grandfather, who passed away years ago, what a presidedress soil nitrogen test could do. Or a portable field chlorophyll meter, to indicate how much nitrogen a plant would need. Or a global positioning system to help track and identify soil configuration on your cropland. Or how you could pick up, from satellite, a storm system that is about to move into your area.

All these things, years ago, were lambasted as "strange devices" that couldn't possibly work and often scared away many farmers. But countless farmers use them now to help grow crops profitably.

For years, state departments of agriculture have used technology to test for pesticide residues on crops, to incredibly small amounts. The public knows this, and has reacted with concerns for residues on food; as a result, no matter how safely most farmers observe label rates and take care to ensure the food is completely safe, states such as California have enacted "prescription pesticide" laws that tightly regulate when, how, and why pesticides can be used.

There is concern that, as a result, states such as Pennsylvania and others in the Mid-Atlantic region could be headed toward the same fate.

What it comes down to is: there is increased societal pressure to do more thinking, gather more data, and assess just what we can do to make farming more "user" and "environmentally" friendly.

Enter integrated pest management (IPM). In two articles by Lancaster Farming staff writer Andy Andrews last week, IPM was carefully explored — how it could be used effectively by layer house managers in poultry operations and in orchards by fruit growers.

To make a complicated matter short, IPM is simply asking growers to do more thinking, more observing, and use more selectively diverse approaches to handling pests. Gone is the day when you sprayed every Thursday, no matter what the insect pressure or expected crop damage. Growers can use inexpensive and effective IPM technology — strange as it may seem — to monitor pests and pinpoint effective strategies to deal with them.

Down the road, Penn State is looking at several other IPM-related "strange devices" that, while they sound pretty far-fetched to us now, could open up big opportunities to help us come to grips with an increasingly demanding public:

- "Spraying" pheromone traps to detract crop-damaging pests.
- "Microwaving" bugs to death through portable equipment in the field, much like the old "tobacco" steamers of your grandfather's days.
- Using photoactivated dies that flies can eat — once the flies enter the sunlight, "zap," they're dead.

We can imagine the microwave in the field, zapping pests. But feeding flies to death — well, that's technology for you!

Now Is The Time

To Keep Cows' Feet Dry

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us one unpleasant effect of the wet season of spring is mud and the problems it causes — foot infections, environmental mastitis, and uterine infections.

Some ways to eliminate mud are:

- Provide cows with a concrete lot so they may be outside without being in the mud.
- Keep dirt areas well drained. Select high ground or create mounded areas. Fill in low spots. If stones keep sinking away in the mud, try using some geotextile fabric in these areas to support the stone. To prevent foot injuries from the stone, be sure the stone base is covered with a hoof friendly surface.
- Do not allow cows to linger long in any one spot. This helps to prevent muddy areas from developing at the entrances to barns and lots, in cow lanes, under shaded areas, etc. Walk cows quickly through these sensitive areas and confine them to pasture area until it is time for them to come in.
- Place feeders and waterers on solid surfaces. If you cannot, then select high, well-drained areas or keep moving them around.
- Seed heavy traffic areas to a rugged grass such as K-31 tall fescue.
- Fence cows away from wet areas or control their access to them.

To Manage Pastures

This past week marked the beginning of spring. With the warmer weather, grass is beginning to grow and cows are being turned out to pasture.

To keep pastures from being cut up, do not let cows in any one area for more than 2 to 3 days. This will give trampled areas an opportunity to recover. To do this you will need a lot of small pasture paddocks. This will allow you to rotate cows through at a rapid rate. This will greatly improve pasture yield and quality while preventing an unsightly mud area.

Remember, when cows are confined to pastures for an extended period of time, they should have access to water.

To Insure Safe Play Areas

With spring now here, children will be playing more outside. Yards are great places to run and explore. Do you have a play yard on your farm that is separated from traffic, livestock, and machinery?

It is difficult, if not impossible, to see or hear someone while running farm machinery. Parents should walk around with your children and set boundaries for where it is safe to play. Identifying and staying in safe play boundaries reduces the risk of being hurt.

Play areas should be free from dangerous debris. This will help prevent cuts, scrapes, falls, and injuries. In addition, toys should be picked up and properly stored when not in use. Play equipment should be free of broken pieces, sharp edges, protrusions, and tripping hazards.

Finally, never mow a yard when children and others are present.

"BUILDING UP" or "TEARING DOWN"
March 26, 1995

"Building Up" or "Tearing Down"

March 26, 1995

Background Scripture:
2 Corinthians 12 & 13
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 3:8-17

Someone once told me that he didn't like reading the letters of Paul because it became so evident that there were church conflicts even in the earliest days of Christianity.

But one should not be surprised to find conflict in the early church. As long as there are humans there will be conflicts. Where two or three are gathered together there will often be five or more opinions. Conflict is not inherently evil. Actually, it is often very constructive. Without conflict there would be little growth, either as individuals or as groups.

The problem is not with conflict, but with what we let conflict do to us and others. Conflict merely means that there are differences which cause friction. Conflict is harmful only when we permit it to have harmful effects. We can learn to handle conflicts constructively.

Church Conflict

Churches sometimes do a poor job of handling conflict. Because we have illusions about everything in the church being peaceful and unanimous, we tend to pretend that conflict is not there. Instead of dealing with it, we ignore it and hope that it will go away. Shoved under the carpet, it often festers and grows. Most of the wounds we sustain in church conflicts are the ones we get while backing away from constructive confrontations.

In 2 Corinthians we can see that Paul is facing up to a conflict between himself and various persons in the church at Corinth, perhaps the whole church. Since writing the letter we know as 1 Corinthians, we know from 2 Corinthians 2:1 that Paul made what he terms a "painful visit" to Corinth. Later, instead of returning to Corinth, he wrote a letter that apparently was quite severe. This letter he sent by Titus, one of his trusted co-workers. Paul became anxious about the letter's reception, but at Macedonia he receives a favorable report from Titus. 2 Corinthians is apparently the letter he wrote after receiving the report from Titus. If you keep this in mind when you read 2 Corinthians you will better understand what Paul is saying. You will also understand why Paul speaks several times of his next visit. "Here for the third time I am ready to come to you. And I will not be a burden..." (12:13).

Into The Open

The important thing is that Paul reacted to the conflict at Corinth by facing it and bringing it out into the open. It is obvious that he does not want to alienate himself from the Corinthian church, but neither does he want to duck the issues. He makes his case. If they thought he had been boasting of his authority, he wants to correct that impression. He has had revelations from God (12:1-6) but he does not boast of them because he deserves no credit for them. He claims no power for himself, but admits his weakness (12:10). He acknowledges: "I have been a fool!" (12:11). But they are not without some fault either, "You forced me to it..." He understands that they may have misunderstood his motives: "Have you been thinking all along that we have been defending ourselves before you?" (12:19). Actually, it is the gospel itself he has been defending. He acknowledges that the authority which the Lord has given him is "for building up and not for tearing down" (13:10).

Paul wants to resolve the conflict in a constructive way and he ends his letter with a benevolent benediction: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all" (13:14).

Conflicts in the church today can be handled with the same openness and constructive good will. All it takes is honesty, humility and love.

CONTROL WEEDS WITH ONE GREAT HERBICIDE AFTER ANOTHER.

Weeds love conservation tillage. So much so that one herbicide treatment just won't do. But a sequential treatment of PROWL® herbicide followed by PURSUIT® herbicide postemergence will. Put PROWL down early for broad-spectrum, season-long control. And PURSUIT over the top for control of really tough broadleaves and escapes. Together, the PROWL followed by PURSUIT sequential gives you superior control of more than 50 problem grasses and broadleaves. So don't give weeds a chance. Hit 'em where they live with PROWL followed by PURSUIT.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, OK
Wed Mar 22, 1995

USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News
Oklahoma National Stockyards Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last Monday: Feeder steers and heifers unevenly steady to 2.00 lower. Feeder steers improved to near steady as demand turned good by noon; buyers were encouraged when cattle futures made modest gains despite a negative COF report last Friday. Stocker steers steady to 2.00 lower. Stocker heifers 2.00-4.00 lower. Stocker demand good for steers but dropped to moderate on heifers. Quality and condition of cattle plain to average, few attractive. Weigh conditions the poorest for buyers in some time with bulk supply average to many full. Flesh condition of feeders medium to moderately fleshy. Large off wheat feeder runs have subsided until late April. It is doubtful that the May runs will be as large as the March exodus. Slaughter cows 1.50-3.00 lower. Slaughter bulls 1.00 lower. Demand from packers fair to moderate, with only few major players. Good demand for bred cows. 180 head herd dispersal included in cow supply. These mostly BWF and Brangus bred heifers. Total of 604 cows and bulls sold with 50 percent to packers. Receipts this week 11,575; last week 16,934; last year 17,022. Supply consisted of 70 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 25 percent calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs; 5 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weights and prices in parenthesis.

There's Just No Better Seed/Herbicide System.

Your seed/herbicide system is only as good as your seed. To get the full benefits of Synchrony STS herbicide, your seed should be Asgrow A4045.

A4045 is a new variety that has shown high yields. It delivers excellent emergence and standability for maximum harvest potential.

A4045 also offers enhanced tolerance to sulfonylurea herbicides like Synchrony STS.

Synchrony STS controls the broadest spectrum of broadleaf weeds and also offers the widest window of application. One rate, one adjuvant with no crop stress to A4045 and no carryover to rotational crops.

For top yields plus the benefits of Synchrony STS, there's just no better bean than A4045.

Call DuPont 1-800-GROW-STS (476-9787) for a FREE information kit on Synchrony STS herbicide and the entire Synchrony STS seed/herbicide system.

LEBANON® EXTRA
Granulated Starter Fertilizer

"THERE'S MORE TO IT THAN JUST NPK"

For over 47 years, farmers throughout the Mid-Atlantic Area from New York to Virginia have produced millions of dollars of crops using Lebanon Extra fertilizer.

Lebanon Extra is an ammoniated, homogenous. granular NPK fertilizer. With the increased emphasis on using less and precise applications of plant food, Lebanon Extra provides the nutrient sources that you can depend on, and not just NPK but also secondary and six micro-nutrients. The nutrient integrity of Lebanon Extra is superior to bulk blend fertilizer products. When using row applications or banding accurate amounts of plant food it can be important to use a safe, quality, uniform grade product. If you are using a blend with MAP compare the value of Lebanon Extra.

Horning grows about 75 acres of corn and 55 acres of alfalfa. On the alfalfa, he maintains a 3-4 year stand. He rotates the contour strip crops with corn and hay. Alternating the strips provides the best hedge against erosion and the rotation promotes standability and production.

As part of the conservation plan, initiated in May 1992, a 316,000-gallon manure storage tank was installed in July 1992. The tank is emptied twice a year, every six to seven months. It was put up with a cost-share program available through the Chester County Conservation District. Horning indicated that since installing the manure system they don't use any starter fertilizer on crops.

During a recent interview at his farm, Horning said he is concerned about possible new legislation farmers will have to face down the pike. Staying ahead of compliance will ensure good relations among the neighbors, he said. The attention to the management aspect of runoff, soil containment, and other conservation aspects will help him, he said, avoid problems in the future.

And while many environmentalists complain about the nutrient management and pesticide practices of farmers, the homeowners have "no legislation at all" to comply with regarding the many tons of pesticides and nutrients placed on lawns.

While more of the county is continually being developed, keeping relations with the neighbors healthy and working to ensure an environmental partnership is vital to DH Lone Hill Farm, according to Horning.

For his dairy, Horning looks for cows that have good production and good overall health, with adequate udders and good feet and legs.

The original Red and White, on the 352-day lactation, recorded 30,000 pounds of milk, he said.

Dairying is the mainstay at DH Lone Hill Farm. The Horning family take care of 60 registered and ID grade Holstein, in addition to some Red and Whites. There are about 50 replacement calves in the herd. The Pa. DHIA herd average for the farm stands at about 20,000 pounds, 3.7f, 3.2p, for a herd total of 685 pounds fat and 624 pounds protein. Here, David, right, looks over a breeding records chart with Conrad Smoker.

Purchase Lawn Care Products Carefully

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Before you resign yourself to having another mediocre lawn this year—or to spending a hefty part of your salary to improve it—take a few tips from a turfgrass specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Revitalizing your lawn doesn't need to be a costly, time-consuming process," said Dr. Peter Landschoot, assistant professor of turfgrass science. "It's more a question of correctly evaluating the trouble spots before you invest in solutions.

"One of the first steps to getting a healthy lawn is to take a soil test, which will tell you how much fertilizer and lime are required," he said.

The Penn State soil fertility test, available for $6 at Penn State Cooperative Extension offices across the state, will help you determine what nutrients your lawn needs and when to apply them.

The least costly way to control weeds is to follow good lawn management practices designed to prevent reinfestation.

"A sound program of mowing, watering and fertilizing is your best defense against weed invasion," Landschoot said. "Nevertheless, many lawns need some extra help."

"Before purchasing herbicides, first identify the weeds you want to control. If you're unsure what the weed is or how to control it, don't just guess what product would be best. Bring a sample of the weed to a lawn and garden center or to your county cooperative extension office and get a professional recommendation.

"Most weed problems can be reduced by using a weed-and-feed-product—an herbicide and fertilizer rolled into one," he said. "It's worth the few extra dollars to rent a spreader, because this will give you even distribution. Make sure that you know what type of weeds are in your lawn before choosing a product. Not all weed-and-feed products are the same."

When it comes to fertilizers and herbicides, more isn't necessarily better, Landschoot said.

"Follow the instructions on the label. Not only are you wasting your money if you apply more than the recommended amount, but you could damage the grass."

Timing is important for weed control. "To combat crabgrass, you have to apply a herbicide before the weed germinates," Landschoot said. "Some people use forsythia bloom as an indicator, but a good rule of thumb is to apply a preemergence herbicide before April 15 in southeastern Pennsylvania, during late April in central Pennsylvani and between May 1 and May 15 in the northwest corner of the state.

"For broadleaf weeds, such as dandelion and clover, wait until the weeds appear before treating them," Landschoot said.

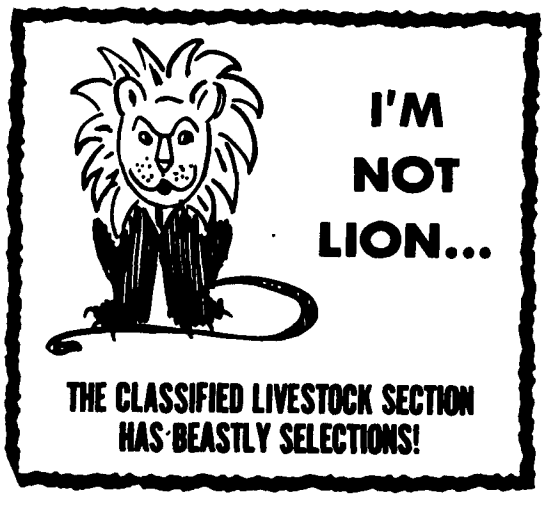
Before purchasing grass seed to replenish thin areas, homeowners should assess why the grass disappeared in the first place. "Ask yourself if the lawn was too wet, too shady or poor in fertility before you spend time and money trying to replace the grass," he said.

"The best time to reseed is in late summer or fall, when there isn't too much competition from weeds. If you apply herbicides in spring, you can damage seedlings."

"When it's time to reseed, don't just throw seed on the lawn," he said. "First, get rid of weeds, break up the soil surface and put down the seed so it comes into good contact with the soil. Place straw mulch over the area so the soil doesn't dry out."

Choose a high quality seed or seed mixture adapted to the site conditions, said Lanschoot.

For more information about specific varieties suited to your area, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.



As part of the conservation plan, initiated in May 1992, a 316,000-gallon manure storage tank was installed in July 1992. The tank is emptied twice a year, or every six to seven months. It was put up with a cost-share program available through the Chester County Conservation District.

Do You Know Which Heifer To Raise?

GEORGE F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del.—Many dairy farmers are absolutely confident they know that heifers from that superior cow sired by that superior bull most likely will be a heifer worth raising.

The catch is "most likely." No one really knows for sure, despite all the sire proofs and cow indexes.

What we know for sure is that in the process of fertilization, the chromosomes on the gametes from each parent combine at random. Therefore, it is not an impossibility that superior parents will have a "dud" of an offspring.

Years ago, in the mid-1960s, forward-looking dairy breeders in this region—Dr. Jim Deubler, Atherton Hobler, Harry Haskell, and Frank Brown—asked that same question.

To find the answer they supported a long-range research project at the University of Delaware in cooperation with Ohio State University and Rutgers University.

The inquiry was threefold. What "markers" in blood, milk or other tissues are determinants of superior performance? Could markers be used for selection of different dairy animals of different milk-producing abilities? And, if yes, could these differences be found in heifers and calves to predict differences in milk production?

In a study of more than 3,000 Guernsey and more than 3,000 Holstein cows, we considered many blood types, milk types and production records. What we found were distinct genetic differences in blood and milk types between cows and daughters of different bulls.

These differences were also related to differences in milk, fat and protein production of the cows and daughters of the bulls.

Some of these relationships were significant, although not always great.

New research in Canada has now shown that these relationships can have economic significance for selection of cows; some of these markers are indicative of significant differences in cheesemaking yields and qualities.

Now from Wisconsin (Journal of Dairy Science 78 (1995) :291-295) comes an exciting new research report that follows the same thinking—using markers for selection, specifically of heifers.

The University of Delaware's blood-type research had been aimed at calves; we wanted to be able to say with relative certainty which newborn calves were worth raising, thus saving us two years of investment.

The new Wisconsin research is aimed at heifers in mid-pregnancy. Can we save ourselves six months to a year of raising-heifer investment?

Instead of following blood or milk types as markers, they used one milk protein, beta-lactoglobulin, as a marker.

Beta-lactoglobulin is one of the proteins left in the whey of milk after cheese making. From our Delaware research we found that beta-lactoglobulin has different genetic forms and that these forms are related as markers to different milk-producing abilities of dairy animals.

The contribution from the Wisconsin research is that beta-lactoglobulin is useful not only as a genetic marker, but it is also a more direct physiological marker.

The new theory is based on the fact that beta-lactoglobulin is not only a protein in milk, it also can be found in blood serum in varying amounts. This information can be used as an index of the milk secretion activity of a particular mammary gland of a particular dairy animal and, therefore, of its future lactation milk yield.

This new research has shown that beta-lactoglobulin in blood serum increases during pregnancy in correlation with the developing mammary gland of the heifer.

The beta-lactoglobulin contents were used as an index in correlation studies with subsequent 305-day, first-lactation milk yields and significant correlations of 46, 54 and 48 percent, respectively, of milk, fat and protein yields were found.

These correlations indicate that testing for beta-lactoglobulin content in a single blood sample from heifers during mid-pregnancy can predict future milk yield of that same heifer, potentially saving a lot of time and money in not raising a "dud" heifer.

In other words, blood serum beta-lactoglobulin can be used as a physiological marker to prescreen heifers for milk production potential.

How can a milk protein be found in blood? During pregnancy the secretory cells of the mammary gland develop, including synthesis of milk beta-lactoglobulin. Because these secretory mammary cells are not held tightly together until just prior to parturition, the synthesized proteins can flow freely between cells and spill back into blood serum, which conveniently provides an index of the secretory activity and capactiy of that young new gland.

This new research could prove valuable. It will give dairy producers a way to save money on heifer selection, even in cases where pedigree information holds promise for a certain heifer.

It also may be possible to refine sire proving by providing new information at a much earlier age, thus saving at least one year with reduced environmental influence and improved reliability.

In addition, genetic differences between beta-lactoglobulin types can also be used as another tool for progeny testing of young bulls.

It will be interesting to see what further research will be found in this area, with its promise of greater economic benefits in dairy animal farming.

State Grange Meets With Federal Legislators

HARRISBURG (Daupin Co.)—Nearly 100 Pennsylvania State Grangers visited their federal legislators during the annual Washington Legislative Tour to discuss pertinent issues concerning agriculture and rural affairs.

Among the issues discussed during the March 21-22 visit with U.S. Congressman and Senators are the cuts being made to agricultural programs, rural health care reforms, wetlands legislation and food safety proposals.

Brenda Shambaugh, PA State Grange legislative director, said the Washington tour presents an opportunity for the Grange to voice its position on issues that have been developed through the Grange's grass-root policies.

A summary of the issues and Grange policy follows:

Government programs that support agricultural prices and farmers' incomes are facing their most serious attack since the early days of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, which the U.S. Supreme Court overturned in 1936.

Congress is proposing to reduce target prices by 3 percent a year. This proposal would reduce government spending in support of agriculture in two simple, but drastic, steps.

It would reduce spending by almost $15 billion over the next five years. And, it would scuttle export subsidies, which would save $3.4 billion, and cap off $11.5 billion by phasing-down crop subsidies.

The Grange, according to Shambaugh, realizes that farm programs are in for an overhaul due to the decreasing number of farmers and, therefore, supports an initiative that would pare down present programs.

"The Grange, like most farm and commodity organizations, favors a shaved-down version of present programs," Shambaugh said. "Reduction in payment acres, reduced or no set-asides, more flexibility in crop bases and a loan rate that is tied to the average world prices are methods the Grange supports to reach that goal."

The Grange's interest in health care reform dates back decades. At the national level, the Grange has sponsored a multi-year, political, educational and action program called "Health Care in America."

The PA State Grange supports: reform of the insurance market; providing 100 percent deductibility for the self-employed; making coverage for children more affordable; helping workers who lose their jobs to keep coverage; and making a wide range of home and community-based options accessible and affordable for families that are caring for a sick parent or disabled child.

The Grange opposes employer mandates, government intervention except to revise current laws and regulations and raising taxes to pay for health care reforms.

"The Grange is continuing its fight to bring about health care reform," Shambaugh said. "The Targeted Individual Health Insurance Reform Act focuses on individual health insurance reforms and portability, nondiscrimination, renewability and fair rating standards. It also limits an insurance company's ability to use pre-existing conditions to deny coverage."

The Grange, along with a coalition of 13 other national farm groups, are addressing their concerns regarding a Memorandum of Agreement that put the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), formerly known as the Soil Conservation Service, as the lead federal agency for delineating wetlands on agricultural land as part of the Clean Water Act (CWA).

"Unfortunately, the MOA is not meeting its stated goals and should be modified immediately" the Grange wrote in a letter to President Bill Clinton.

"The problem the Grange has with the MOA is that although its purpose was to put the NRCS in charge of wetlands delineation or agricultural land, the actual language of the agreement allows the Environmental Protection Agency to preempt such authority," Shambaugh said. "Technical changes need to be made to the MOA to truly place the NRCS in charge of agricultural land delineations and provide a consistent determination for farmers and ranchers from all federal agencies."

The Grange is seeking a moratorium on the MOA and delineations of agricultural wetlands until passage of the 1995 Farm Bill and is supporting legislation introduced by Bud Shuster, R-PA, that creates an adminstrative appeals process for wetlands determinations and would authorize the state revolving loan fund program at $2 billion a year.

The bill also seeks to provide greater recognition of different wetland functions and values, procedural rights and private property rights, according to Shambaugh.

The Grange backs the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) attempt to incorporatet scientific testing of meats and poultry to achieve systematic prevention of food contamination.

A USDA proposal would require the nation's nearly 6,200 federally-inspected meat and poultry slughter and processing plants to adopt science-based process control systems called Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP).

"This program would identify potential food safety hazards that arise in slaughter and processing plants and would build-in science-based preventive controls," Shambaugh said. "The Grange supports any program that further ensures our food supply is wholesome and safe for consumers."

Included in the trek to the nation's capital were a congressional breakfast with legislators, a meeting with Pennsylvania's senators and House and Senate Ag Committee staff memebers and tours of the National Cathedral, Union Station and the DAR Museum.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is a rural/farm organization with 33,000 members in 475 local Granges across the state. They Pennsylvania State Grange is committed to improving the lives of rural Pennsylvanians through legislative initiatives, community service and providing services to its members.

WARNING!

DON'T THROW AWAY UP TO 45% OF YOUR HAY.

Losses occur when crops are stored--regardless of the storage method. Those losses are real--colorless, odorless and invisible--you can't see them, but they're there

The air trapped within stored feed begins the fermentation process--and fermentation continues until all the air is consumed. The less air within the stored feed, the less loss.

Because bunker silos are not easily packed, losses in bunker silos range from 27% to 45%. If the feed is valued at $30 per ton, every 1000 tons stored in a bunker would suffer losses from $8,100 to $13,500. Tower silo losses range from 3% to 8%, or $900 to $2400 for every 1000 tons.

Those losses occur for every 1000 tons--every time feed is stored, year after year. Before investing in any storage method, consider the total costs--including fermentation loss.

Compare the various methods of feed storage. Contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of "Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

Some Pennsylvanians Trying Seasonal Dairying

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Some Pennsylvania dairy farmers, faced with long hours and tight profit margins, are switching to seasonal dairying.

But the producers must consider both advantages and disadvantages before adopting the system, a dairy economist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, said recently.

"In seasonal dairying, you manage the herd so that all cows calve in the same onth or tow each year," said Dr. Stephen Ford, assistant professor of agricultural economics. "With this system, all cows are in their dry period simultaneously and no cows are milked, saving labor. But other significant economic consequences are possible."

Much of the seasonal dairying benefit stems from seasonal price differences. "Crop prices generally are lowest immediately after harvest, then rise until the next year's harvest," Ford said. "Milk prices tend to be higher in the late fall, dropping until late spring or early summer."

One seasonal dairying strategy in Pennsylvania maximizes revenue by matching the cows' peak lactation to periods of high milk prices.

"Adjusting the month of calving and peak milk production to the period when milk prices are highest could increase gross milk receipts by up to 5 percent over year-round calving," Ford said.

"This fall calving strategy is particularly important for producers who are paid on a base from their fall milk production, such as farmers in federal Milk Marketing Order 4.

"Another strategy would be to cut costs by having cows freshen in the spring, which matches the lactation curve to grass availability, reducing purchased and on-farm feed costs," Ford said.

When all cows are in their dry period, no labor is required for milking. "This labor could be shifted to other tasks, such as forage production, machinery repair or management planning," Ford said. A fall calving system could free milking labor for forage harvest during the summer, perhaps resulting in higher quality forage.

"Many farm families also enjoy the lifestyle benefits of not milking for a month or two, particularly if that period coincides with cold winter weather or a summer vacation with children," Ford said.

Farm cash flow may be interrupted or reduced during months when no milk is sold.

"If this interruption coincides with crop input purchases or other expenses, the farm's cash will need to be managed to meet expenses," Ford said. Some farms may need a loan to get throught the reduced income period.

Seasonal dairying also may have direct costs.

"Some capital investment may be required," Ford said. Having all calves at the same stage of growth at any one time may require more calf hutches or maternity pens. Also, having all cows reach peak lactation at the same time may require a larger bulk tank for milk storage.

Economic loss also may result if labor needs during crunch times cause other activities to be neglected.

"For example, crop yields and quality may suffer if calving conflicts with planting or harvesting," Ford said. The stress of intensive labor periods may be more that some producers want to handle.

A seasonal dairy also must maintain a 12-month calving interval so all cows breed back at the same time each year, which can be difficult.

"If late-calving cows are dried off early with the rest of the herd, the farm sells less milk," Ford siad. Cows that don't breed back in time to maintain the seasonal system must be replaced, perhaps resulting in a higher cull rate."

Quality Assured

Quality is one of the most important aspects of your Pa. DHIA monthly report.

You'll never see a quality score anywhere on your report, or a little sticker saying, "These samples inspected by No. 4," but sample testing quality affects every aspect of the information you pay for.

Think about it. How do you know that the fat, protein, and somatic cell count results on your monthly report are accurate?

You base feeding, breeding, and even culling decisions on these results. To use this information effectively, you must have confidence in the test results.

As Laboratory Quality Control Specialist for Pa. DHIA I'd like to share with you some of the steps we take, every day, to assure that the results you receive are of the highest possible quality.

First, let me describe several aspects of sample testing that influence the "correctness" of test results.

An instrument must be specific for the component in question. There should not be background noise that causes elevated or depressed readings.

An instrument must produce repeatable results. A given sample should have the same result each time it is tested by the machine.

Of course, each instrument must be accurate, giving the right answer each time a sample is tested.

Every week, I run a battery of quality checks on each machine in the lab to make sure that it reads samples specifically, repeatably and accurately. Each machine is calibrated to standards produced by a nationally distributed company.

The standards cover a wide range of values for fat, protein, lactose and somatic cell count, thus ensuring that the machines are reading all samples correctly whether, for instance, the somatic cell count is 150,000 or 1,000,000.

Each morning, before any producer samples are tested, the machine operators go through a series of start-up tests to verify machine performance: Is there any background noise? Does the machine produce the correct value on a known sample? Is it giving the same value each time the sample is tested?

Any machine which does not pass all of the performance checks is not used until we can rectify the problem, then verify machine performance.

Every hour during the day, "check test" samples of known value are tested to verify that the machines are reading accurately and consistently. Again, any machine not passing all quality checks at any time is taken off line until we feel confident that it is functioning properly.

Throughout the course of a normal working day, each work station is subjected to a minimum of 73 quality checks!

Of course, these sophisticated machines don't run by themselves. A critical part of the machine operator's job is monitoring the parts of quality that any number of machine tests can't control.

Things like identification, temperature at testing, and condition of samples are monitored by the machine operator as each herd is tested. Quality is the most important aspect of the job for our machine operators.

Although we strive for quick turnaround time, getting the right answer is always more important than getting a fast answer.

Did you know that Pa. DHIA's laboratory scored 99 out of a possible 100 on our last annual certification for National DHIA?

Whenever your samples are tested, and whatever type of testing you request, you can be assured that the test results you get from Pa. DHIA are of the highest possible quality.

At Pa. DHIA, we care!

In 1953, Rohrer purchased the second farm, where his son-in-law Clyde Kreider lives. Kreider maintains the crops, and Glenn Rohrer takes care of the cows. Donnie Rohrer milks the cows every day and Joe Kark, herdsman, works for the Rohrers in the dairy operation. In addition, they have two part-time employees.

Wilmer Rohrer lives on the third farm, purchased in 1968. In 1985, Glenn and Clyde purchased the Lefever Farm tract, now known as the Rohrer and Kreider Farm. After the Chesapeake Bay Cost-Share Program began in the county, Rohrer Farms were signed up and work on terraces began. Already, 7,000 feet of terraces had been installed on the Lefever Farm, and another 7,000 feet were installed.

The four farms are operated as one unit, according to Heistand. The Rohrers have 21,920 feet of pipe outlet terraces. More than 10,000 feet of pipe have been installed. On the farm north of Blue Rock Road, where Kreider lives, 2,000 feet of diversion were installed in 1992 to catch surface water from the farmstead and filter it before going into the stream. The roof water is piped directly to the stream.

The Rohrers employ a lot of cover cropping. About 45 acres of wheat/barley are double-cropped into soybeans on the fields with a high erosion potential. A majority of the soybeans are planted no-till and on fields least prone to erosion, manure is chiseled in.

Of the 600 tillable acres, 200 are rented from four different tracts. The Rohrers grow 400 acres of corn, 90 acres of soybeans, 70 acres of alfalfa, 45 acres of barley/wheat, 27 acres of tomatoes, 20 acres of tobacco, and 35 acres of pasture.

Diversity is evident in the farm operation. The Rohrers manage 300-500 feeder pigs and a 236-cow (180 heifers) dairy. They have installed two 98,000-gallon manure storage structures. Animals are housed on all four farms.

One farm has a farm pond, installed in 1964 after the children learned how to swim. The farm properties are well maintained. The Rohrers are active at Millersville Mennonite Church and the Kreiders are active at Marietta Congregational Church.

Glenn Rohrer told those attending the banquet that, regarding conservation practices on the farms, there is still "a lot to do yet in the future."

Also at the banquet, the Youth Conservation School honored four for their efforts for their service: Becky Fox, Ephrata; Tim Landis, Blue Ball; Chris Hall, New Holland; and Scott Reinhart, Denver.

Special conservation awards were also presented. For the state agency, Richard Vannoy, program specialist of the Bureau of Land and Water Conservation, Bradford County, was honored. A private sector award was presented to Harlan Keener, West Lampeter Township, for his pioneering work in biogas digesting using swine manure. The local agency award went to Bob Gregory for 10 years of dedicated service to the county conservation district. The educator award was presented to Clair Witwer, Pequea Valley agriculture instructor, for the FFA chapter's leadership and service. A special cooperator award was presented to Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, represented by Harry Roth. Goodyear awards were presented to directors and representatives of the district.

A special award was presented to Nevin Greiner for choosing the new name of the county's conservation newsletter, to be named the "Conservation Crier."

Special conservation awards were also presented. For the state agency, Richard Vannoy, program specialist of the Bureau of Land and Water Conservation, Bradford County, far right, was honored. A private sector award was presented to Harlan Keener, West Lampeter Township, second from left, for his pioneering work in biogas digesting using swine manure. The local agency award went to Bob Gregory, second from right, for 10 years of dedicated service to the county conservation district. The educator award was presented to Clair Witwer, Pequea Valley agriculture instructor, third from left, for the FFA chapter's leadership and service. A special cooperator award was presented to Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, represented by Harry Roth, far left.

Cheap Seed May Not Be A Bargain

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Cheaper is not necessarily better when it comes to establishing forage stands, said an agronomist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Each year at this time I hear about someone who got a 'real deal' on clover or alfalfa seed," said Dr. Marvin Hall, assistant professor of forage management and director of Penn State's Forage Variety Testing Program.

"But research shows you get what you pay for when buying seed," Hall said. "Some older varieties cost a third of what newer varieties cost, but ultimately you lose money to lower yields and more disease."

Price differences between varieties can be significant, Hall said. "Certified top-yielding red clover seed can cost 40 cents to $1 more per pound than non-certified seed. If you plant 12 pounds per acre and the difference in price is $1 per pound, using a better variety of red clover costs $12 more per acre. That may seem like a lot of money, especially since the seeds from each variety look the same."

But yield data from the variety testing program indicate that the extra $12 is a sound investment.

"We tested many varieties at Penn State farms in Landisville and Rock Springs," Hall said. "In both locations, the newer, high-yielding red clover varieties consistenly yielded more than common red clover."

Averaged over both locations in 1992 and 1993, common red clover produced .66 fewer tons per acre per year.

"Even if red clover forage is worth only $75 per ton, the extra income associated with the additonal $12 investment for high-yielding certified red clover seed would be $49.50 per year," Hall said. "If the field is kept in red clover for only two years, you $12 investment would return $99.

Better seed means a better stand when it comes to alfalfa, too. Alfalfa varieties in Pennsylvania need at least moderate resistance to bacterial wilt, vericillium wilt, fusarium wilt, anthracnose and phytophthor root rot.

"If you have a chance to buy a no-name or older variety for a cheap price, reconsider how much money you're really likely to save," Hall said. "Using newer varieties with higher yields and better disease resistance will increase the alfalfa stand's life expectancy. The longer a stand remains productive, the more years you have to spread out the high cost of establishing it."

One newer, highly disease-resistant alfalfa variety costs $30 more per acre than an older variety, assuming a 15-pound-per-acre seeding rate and $3 versus $1 per pound of seed.

"But with average production for both old and new varieties and a value of $80 per ton of alfalfa, the additional cost for the newer variety will be made up by the end of the first production year," said Hall. "By the end of the fourth production year, the newer variety will have grossed nearly $600 more per acre than the older one, which would have been plowed up at the end of the third production year."

The Penn State Forage Trials Report contains more detailed information on the performance of forage species including red clover, alfalfa, timothy, tall fescue, bromegrass, perennial ryegrass and reed canarygrass in Pennsylvania. 1995 Pennsylvania Machinery Custom Rates

By Greg Truckor
Agricultural Statistician

The custom rates shown are averages from voluntary reports by custom operators throughout Permsylvania. Most of the rates are stated per acre, cwt., ton bale, or bushel rather than per hour to reduce the variation due to machinery size. Individual rates vary due to differences in working conditions, services performed, or even the operator's eagerness to do custom work. Therefore, the average rates shown should not be considered absolute indications of fair charges.

Acreage rates are shown separately for two regions of the state, labeled "Mountain" and "Valleys". The differences in rates between regions reflect differences in terrain soils and alternative opportunities for the labor and equipment used. Figures labeled "state" represent the straight average of all reports used regardless of geographic location.

Custom rates are slightly higher this year. Of the 68 rates reported 63 percent have increased, 13 percent have decreased, and 24 percent are the same as last year. The overall average is up 2 percent from the previous year. This percentage increase was computed by adding the rates for ail jobs, regardless of basis of charges and dividing by last year's comparable total.

Alfred State Flower, Garden Show April 1-2

ALFRED, N.Y.—Dates for Alfred State College's flower and garden show, which traditionally marks winter's end in western New York, are Saturday and Sunday, April 1-2.

Students in the three horticulture curriculums are completing work on exhibits for the floral extravaganza that annually attracts thousands of visitors to the Anderson Horticulture Center.

Hours for the free public event are 5-10 p.m. April 1, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 2, according to Joan K. Wissert, assistant professor in the Agriculture and Horticulture Department and show adviser.

"A Walk in the Park" is the theme for the 1995 show, which is under the direction of seven student coordinators.

Amy Pinker of West Seneca is the coordinator for the floriculture production curriculum. Corey Taylor of Elmira Heights and Michael Enright of Rochester are coordinators for the landscape development curriculum.

Coordinators for the floriculture merchandising curriculum are Michelle Folts, Lawtons; Heather Rea, Custer City, Pa.; Stacey Fenton, Ogdensburg; and Christa O'Brien, Greenwood.

Visitors will be greeted by students in a natural park setting created by freshman landscapers.

A stone walkway will lead guests through an assortment of plants including heathers, junipers, and spruces.

Featured plants in this display will be Gold Threaded Cypress and Japanese Lace Maple.

Staying on the path, the next park setting—designed by senior landscapers—will feature a contemporary assortment of trees and shrubs accented by perennials.

Then, it's a stroll through a period garden, "taking visitors back to the gentle days of the Victorian period," coordinators note.

At the next stop, show attendees will be "guests" at a park "wedding" and "reception." Floriculture merchandising students are creating this display, which will be compete with "bridal party."

The wedding cake will be provided by students in Alfred State's Culinary Arts Department, with wedding attire made available by local merchants.

Students in the floriculture production curriculum are transforming 18,000 square feet of greenhouse space into scenes reminiscent of parks around the world.

"Waterfalls, pools, picnic spots, and park benches will give each visitor that chance to revisit a park from their past," student planners said.

The show also will offer three types of gardens: Oriental, cottage, and woodland.

Special educational displays will feature dried flowers, computerized greenhouse controls systems, integrated pest management, and special plants for special uses (medicinals, aromatics, and herbs).

N.J. Holstein Breeders To Tour Central Pa.

BELVIDERE N.J. — The Rutgers Cooperative Extension in cooperation with the Warren County, New Jersey, Holstein Association, is sponsoring a bus tour to dairy operations into Pennsylvania's Blair and Centre counties on March 31.

There are two pickups locations.

The bus is to leave the upper parking lot of the Wayne Dumont Jr. Administration Building promptly at 7:15 a.m. The administration building is located along Rt. 519, one mile south of Belvidere.

The bus is also to make a stop at the truck stop in Columbia at 7:30 a.m.

The bus is expected to return to the Wayne Dumont Jr. Administration Building about 10:30 p.m.

The itinerary includes a visit to five farms with outstanding herds and facilities.

A visit is to be made at Courter Farms, in Mill Hall, owned by Paul Courter. It has a 4-year-old tie-stall barn and new heifer facilities. Courter milks 70 cows and has a 23,000 pound milk rolling herd average. His BAA is 103.1.

The group is also to stop at Ulmer Farms, in Bellefonte. Owned by Dan Ulmer, it has a new heifer barn, a tie-stall barn, and he milks 75 cows with a 23,000 pounds milk RHA. The herd has a BAA of 105.

Spring Lake Farm, in Tyrone, is a farm owned by Tom Kelly, who has worked as a classifier for Holstein Association. He has a tie-stall barn with 85 cows and a 25,000 pounds milk RHA. He also raises his heifers in a free stall facility.

The tour is to go to Altoona to visit Blackcrest Farms, owned by Robert and John Black. The two milk 71 cows in a tie-stall banr and the herd has a 23,500 pound milk RHA, with a 105.5 BAA. Half the herd is comprised of animals carrying the red and white gene. Also, 25 bulls bred and born at farm are in use in artificial insemination studs. The partnership also was featured in the December 1993 issue of Hosltein World magazine.

Also on the stop is a visit to the Evergreen Farms, in Spruce Creek, Huntingdon County, owned by Wayne Harpster. To knowledge, the farm is the largest facility in Pennsylvania and was designed to handle more than 1,400 cattle on three-times per day milking. Built in 1993, a set of two long, drive-through freestall barns is connected to a double-40 milking parlor.

The family farm includes more than 2,200 acres and has 50 employees, in addition to a number of unique aspects, such as flush cleaning of the free stalls and a processed manure-liquid irrigation system.

The tour should be a memorable one. Deadline for registration is Tuesday, March 28, and the cost for the bus is $18 per person.

Participants should bring a lunch to eat on the bus between stops. Also, the bus is scheduled to stop at Buckhorn Family Restaurant on the return trip, with each participant responsible for his meal.

For more information, call William Kerkendall, president of the Warren County Holstein Association, or Everett Chamberlain, Warren County Extension agricultural agent at (908) 475-6503.

International Sales Of Semen Growing, Domestic Slips

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The sale of dairy cattle semen produced in the United States has been growing internationally; while domestic sales have been stagnant, a reflection of decreasing numbers of domestic dairy cattle, according to Dr. Gordon Doak, president of the National Association of Animal Breeders and Certified Semen Services.

Doak was the featured speaker at the 31st annual meeting of the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, held Wednesday at the Eden Resort Inn, in Lancaster.

The cooperative meeting included a business meeting, as well as reports from different officers in the cooperative. The meeting also served as an orientation for the cooperative's elected directors and representatives to the resource/promotion committee.

In Doak's presenation to the group — his second public speaking engagement before a member organization since 1976, and both times at Atlantic's annual meeting — he outlined the trends in the dairy industry toward fewer farms, fewer cows with higher milk production, and the associated decrease in the need for semen.

At the same time, the costs of producing semen have increased.

A trend that has served to keep economic balance within the artificial insemination industry has been the increased sales of semen internationally.

According to Doak, since 1985, export sales have tripled, while domestic sales have decreased by almost 10 percent.

He showed a graph that extended the trends past the year 2000, indicating that eventually, sales of exported semen could become more financially important than domestic sales, although Doak said he didn't believe it would continue that far.

The point he was trying to make was that the U.S. artificial insemination industry is going to have to start working on developing types of cattle semen tailored to the needs of non-domestic buyers.

In effect, he said that the U.S. industry can't afford to treat international sales of semen as a beneficial sideline business that will continue without regard.

He said those markets must be understood and products developed to compete with the increase in semen production in those other nations.

Further, he said that he didn't think that — given that much of the dairy genetics coming from other nations are basically derived from genetic programs developed here — that the price of imported semen should naturally not be able to undersell domestic semen.

He also said the beef cattle and swine semen sales are increasing and will provide opportunities for increased sales.

In other business, Harry Roth, general manager of the cooperative, gave an overview of the cooperative's favorable business position, which also reflects the larger trend in semen sales of less member sales and increased income from non-member and export sales.

He also reviewed the proposed merger with two other artificial insemination cooperatives under the Federated Genetics, and the question that he said faces the cooperatives: "Can we somehow continue to accelerate our genetic progress through progeny testing and yet contain overhead cost?"

The answers, he said, may lie in two possibilities. He said that technological breakthroughs in selection methods of young sires (perhaps through genetic testing for known genes); and networking with other A.I. cooperatives as far as progeny testing may help achieve that a "yes" answer to that question.

Dr. Gordon Doak, president of the National Association of Animal Breeders, is guest speaker at the annual Atlantic Breeders Cooperative annual banquet meeting.

February Milk Production Up

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Milk production in Pennsylvania during February 1995 totaled 820 million pounds, 4 percent above last year's production, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

The number of milk cows in the state during the month averaged 641,000 head, up 2,000 from January, and 4,000 more than February 1994.

Production per cow averaged 1,280 pounds in February, 110 pounds less than January's production per cow of 1,390 pounds, but 40 pounds more than February 1994.

Milk production in the 22 states surveyed during February 1995 totaled 10.4 billion pounds, up 4 percent compared to production during February 1994.

The number of milk cows averaged 8.09 million head, up 7,000 head from a year earlier. Production per cow averaged 1,287 pounds, 51 pounds more than February of last year.

Somerset Holstein Club Names Directors, Honors Youth

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

ROCKWOOD (Somerset Co.) — About 150 people attended the Somerset County Holstein Club annual banquet and business meeting held recently at the Rockwood Fire Hall.

The purpose of the annual meeting was to elect officers, recognize members' outstanding achievements and hear reports on the organization and industry.

In elections, Willard Maust, of Meyersdale, Scott Foreman, of Rockwood, and Ben Miller, of Boswell, were elected to three-year terms on the county club's board of directors. Maust was re-elected.

Also, in award-winner recognitions, plaques were distributed to junior members. All production awards were based on milk and milk component production during a 305-day lactation and twice-per-day milking.

Among the 2-year-olds, cows owned by Mathew and Nicholas Hunsberger, of Davidsville were the high producers.

The top producer of milk and protein was BJ-Line Glow Veronica, owned by Matthew Hunsberger. Veronica produced 24,861 pounds of milk, with 859 pounds of butterfat and 794 pounds of protein. Her butterfat production was second in the county among registered Holsteins entered.

The top butterfat producer was BJ-Line SW Ragheeb, owned by Nicholas Hunsberger. Ragheeb made 22,219 pounds milk, 919 pounds butterfat, and 786 pounds protein. She was second for milk and protein.

Two Hillegass youth, of Berlin, received awards for owning the top producing 3-year-old, 4-year-old, 5-year-old, and 6-year-old cows.

Among the 3-year-olds, the top producer was Antrim-Spring Inspiration Reina-ET, owned by Justin Hillegass. Reina made 26,323 pounds of milk, 1,040 pounds of fat, and 820 pounds protein.

The top milk-producing 6-year-old cow was also owned by Justin Hillegass. Hill-A-Way Mandingo Fancy made 29,205 pounds of milk, 997 pounds of butterfat, and 843 pounds of protein.

From the left, Justin Hillegass, Desirae Hillegass, and William Mosholder receive awards in recognition of the high milk and milk component production of their registered Holsteins. Not shown are Matthew and Nicholas Hunsberger.

From the left, Willard Maust, Ben Miller and Scott Foreman are elected to the board of directors of the Somerset County Holtein Club.

Desirae Hillegass not only had the top producing 4-year-old, but also the top 5-year-old.

Her top producing 4-year-old for milk and components was Miss Hill-A-Way Ryan Kacy. Kacy made 28,162 pounds of milk, 840 pounds of butterfat, and 803 pounds of protein.

Desirae's top producing 5-year-old was Hill-A-Way Mark Pansy, with production of 28,396 pounds of milk, 1,006 pounds of butterfat and 855 pounds of protein.

William Mosholder, of Rockwood, received awards for the production from two of his cows. In second place among the 3-year-old cows for milk and milk component production was Double-Ott Mossys Dee Dee, with 22,496 pounds of milk, with 847 pounds butterfat, and 780 pounds of protein.

The high producing 6-year-old for milk components was Mosholder's Fra-Jan Valiant Miracle, with production of 28,629 pounds of milk, with 1,077 pounds of butterfat, and 863 pounds of protein.

It was also announced that Jeff Smiley, a Junior member from Berlin, was honored as the owner-breeder of an Excellent cow, during the state Junior Holstein Association, held in February this year.

Also in connection with that convention, Brian Deal reported that, for the third straight year, Somerset County was honored for having the most members attend the convention.

There were other highlights during the banquet.

The county Junior Holstein Club held an auction of dairy items — such as food, a calf, semen and service, milking services, clipping services, and specialty items — to raise money so club members can attend the national Holstein convention, scheduled for June.

According to Connie Welch, auction committee member, the $567 raised during the banquet exceeded the goal members set. She said the support is greatly appreciated, as some of the planned activities come with great expense, such as a boat cruise on the popular Gateway Clipper.

New Device Claims To Save Teats

CHETEK, Wis. — Blue rings circling some cows' rear legs may appear as some sort of new-fangled bovine jewelry, but the rings have supporters who hope they will be successful in preventing teat injuries.

The foam rings are called "teat savers" and are a Japanese product being marketed in the United States through a Wisconsin manufacturer and various distributors.

According to the manufacturer, teat savers are best used in the period just before and after freshening.

The blue rings are placed just above the dew clase on both rear legs, and they slide the udder away from the leg as the cow gets up from a lying position. This is to prevent the ankle and dew claw from stepping on the teat.

It also provides a cushion under and near the dew claw to keep it from stepping on the teat.

The rings were designed with confinement set-ups such as stanchion barns in mind, because this is where cows often lack sufficient room to get up, according to the manufacturer.

The cross-linked polyethylene foam rings were discovered by Prairie Farm dairy producer Julian Nelson on a visit to Japan in 1988. His family had hosted a Japanese exchange student in 1976 and visited her family 12 years later.

While there, they stopped at several dairy farms. The device, which Nelson had never seen before, was invented by a Japanese veterinarian.

Nelson has been using the device at his farm ever since. "I've never had a cow step on a teat while they've been on," he said.

The dairyman and his wife, Janet, milk 56 cows in a stanchion barn. Teat Savers have replaced the sometimes clumsy cow bras on their farm.

Nelson said he first thought the blue rings were "startling," but many Japanese farmers were using them.

"I had no idea what they were for, but I was real interested in them," he said. He bought two sets before returning home.

Over the next year, Nelson tried to find the manufacturer and patent holder. In 1989, he made contact and was able to buy 50 additional pairs. One ste usually lasts one lactation.

Nelson said he is certain that trying the foam rings on one problem cow will prove to other farmers that they work. However, he doesn't use the rings on all his cows. They are typically used only on those with larger udders, more likely to catch teats underneath their hooves.

"If a cow steps on a teat one day, chances are she'll step on it again another day," he said.

When he was sure they would prevent teat injury for other farmers too, Nelson and some partners formed J.B. Supply Ltd. to import the product for U.S. sale.

Tom Jennings, president of J.B. Supply Ltd., works out of the office, in the basement of a Wisconsin dentists clinic. He touts the product's simplicity, and that they can be washed off and do not cause tissue injury to the cow.

"It needs to be strong, yet soft," Jennings said. The Teat Savers are made to withstand more than 200 pounds of tensile strength, yet are very lightweight and do not bother the cow.

To adjust the size for an individual cow, inner tabs can be removed.

Replaceable clamps snap the device together once it is around the cow's ankle. For best results, Jennings recommends applying the devices 1½ weeks prior to freshening and allowing them to remain on for at least four months.

When there is no longer a risk of injury, they can be removed.

After attachment, the device is supposed to stay on the leg, unless the cow rubs is along a gutter grate, or her foot and leg gets stuck in mud or manure. Longevity of the ring depends on the type of bedding.

The material used to make the devices was designed specifically for the product. It is the result of a combination of thermal and injection molding. Farmers interested in trying them may write to J.B. Supply Ltd., Box 876, Chetek, Wis., 54728.

New Holstein Classification Programs Bring Favorable Responses

BRATTLEBORO, Vt.—The new classification programs implemented by the Holstein Association USA late last summer are getting favorable reponses from dairy producers across the country who like the flexibility and choices with the new programs.

In August 1994, the Association began offering producers six classification participation programs and three scheduling options. This allowed more flexibility to enable breeders to fit classfication programs to their individual needs.

The six new programs are: Classic, Standard, Basic, Limited, Introductory, and Breeder's Choice. A review of the 3,679 herds classified between August 1, 1994, and Feb. 28, 1995, reveals that all of the new programs are being used.

Two-thirds of Association members classifying during this period enrolled in the Classic program. Sixty-six percent, or 2,415 herds, took part in this program.

More than 600 herds (17 percent) were enrolled in the Standard program, and 174 herds took part in the Basic program.

A higher percentage took advantage of the Limited program, with 297 herds; and 67 herds took part in the Breeder's Choice program.

John Neal Scarlett, of Scarletts Dairy in New Market, Tenn., was one of those who took part in the Limited program, classifying 67 animals in September of 1994. He said he was very pleased with the new options available.

"We've classified for a long time, but if the new programs hadn't come along, there's a very good chance we wouldn't be classifying today," he said. Currently, he is in a partnership operation with his family and milks about 250 Holsteins.

"It's tough to get a lot of cows ready for classifying," Scarlett said. "This is the first time I've been able to relax and enjoy classifying, since the Association's had the new programs."

The Holtzinger family, from New Berlin, Pa., has taken part in the new classification programs as well. Kevin and Karen Holtzinger classified 156 animals in November 1994, utilizing the Classic program. Several Very Good cows were scored at that time.

Kevin noted that with the next classification they may only score a select group of animals.

"We'd like to just do the 2-year-olds next time," he said. "With the Limited program, we can do that." The Limited program allows all previously unscored cows fresh less than 10 months to be scored.

Some changes were recently made in the new programs.

Participants in the Breeder's Choice program and for the Non-Area scheduling of any program are no longer required to contract for a future classification. Enrollment eligibility for these choices is now based solely on past participation.

To be eligible, breeders must have participated in a qualifying program within the past 14 months.

For producers who have not classified any animals in the past five years, the Introductory program is available. (Participation in a SET does not affect eligibility for this program.) This is a special program for producers who have not been classifying regularly, and will provide them with extra benefits in getting started.

First and second lactation cows fresh less than 10 months are the only cows required to be presented in the Introductory program. Optional cows not presented in this program will be excused from future classifications if the producer wishes.

The Association's Board of Directors has also approved the addition of a Junior classification program. This will allow Junior members to have their animals classified even if their parents choose not to participate. The rules for this program have been developed, and the program will be implemented later this year.

ture employs 21 million people, 18 percent of the labor force."

Further citing agriculture's productivity, Secretary Brosius noted that an average family of four consumes some 5,000 pounds of food annually, and spends the smallest percentage of disposable income for food, 11.4 percent, of any of the world's major industrialized nations.

By comparison, he related, Japanese consumers spend 21 percent of their disposable income on food, Italians spend 26 percent, while in China, food takes 53 percent of consumer's income.

In celebration of National Agriculture Day, Secretary Brosius was presented a gift basket of Pennsylvania fruit and related commodity items by Penn's Agri-Women, which initiated the Ag Day luncheon buffet at the Capitol several years ago.

A second basket was sent to

Penn's Agri-Women Support For You

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—The annual Ag Day buffet in the Capitol's beautiful East Wing Rotunda originated about 10 years ago as an agriculture education program of Penn's Agri-Women.

Penn's Agri-Women (PAW) was formed in October, 1977, as a state affiliate of the national organization, American Agri-Women (AAW).

Agri-Women's motto is: "We can do it...together." In its mission statement, "Call To Power," Agri-Women's founders acknowledge that food is a global concern and accept the responsibilities of supporting American agriculture and the family.

"In a sense, we are to the farmer what a public relations firm and an advertising agency are to other multi-million dollar business," stated charter member Gail McPherson, York County, a founder of both AAW and PAW, and current state treasurer.

Membership encompasses numerous commodities, giving members the opportunity to learn about other types of agriculture while working together on goals common to the combined ag community. Training members for public relations and public speaking enables them to be more effective carriers of the agriculture message.

Education of consumers and the non-farming community has, and continues to be, a key focus of Agri-Women. To that end, Agri-Women remains active in such events as National Agriculture Day, development of Ag In The Classroom programs, testifying at state and national governmental hearings and maintaining ongoing contact with state and national legislative representatives.

Agri-Women extends a membership invitation to all women interested in the preservation and promotion of agriculture. Penn's Agri-Women's annual dues of $15 include membership in both PAW and AAW, and may be sent to treasurer Gail McPherson, 252 East Maple Lawn Road, New Park, PA 17352.

Please include complete name, address, county, telephone number and agriculture commodity(s) produced. For more information, contact Gail McPherson at (717) 382-4878 or PAW president Pat Sueck, (717) 862-3486.

Pa. Celebrates Ag Day

One of his first official acts on the day the state Senate confirmed his appointment, state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius leads the Ag Day buffet luncheon line with Pat Suek, president of Penn's Agri-Women.

From the left, state Rep. Sheila Miller, R-Berks, and state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius talk with Pat Suek, president of Penn's Agri-Women.

In celebration of National Ag Day, Pat Sueck, president of the Penn's Agri-Women, presents a fruit and commodities basket to newly confirmed state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius.

Gov. Tom Ridge, who was unable to attend the Ag Day events due to legislative activities.

The gift fruit baskets were made and donated for the event by Brown's Orchards Farm Market of Loganville, York County.

Following his Ag Day comments, Secretary Brosius and Penn's Agri-Women President Pat Sueck opened the buffet line to a bounteous spread of Pennsylvania-produced food commodities.

Participating with Agri-Women in assembling the buffet were the Pennsylvania Beef Council, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and the Commodity Round Table.

Two hours later, an estimated 1,000 legislators, staffers and guests at the Capitol had partaken of the buffet highlighting Pennsylvania-produced foods.

Featured on the menu were 70 pounds each of ham and cheese, 30 pounds of bologna, another 25 of venison bologna, with four dozen loaves of assorted breads for sandwich-making. Some 800 tortilla, beef, spinach and tomato "tailgate roll-ups" added to the entree selections.

Ag Day diners also enjoyed 27 dozen red beet eggs, six pounds of fresh mushrooms, a couple dozen jars of marinated mushrooms, and dipped numerous trays of fresh vegetables into five gallons of dairy-based dips. Four bushels of fresh apples and a variety of cakes and pastries rounded out the buffet's dessert offerings, accompanied by five hundred half-pints of white and chocolate milk.

National Agriculture Day is celebrated annually on the first day of spring, as part of the National Agriculture Week salute to the nation's farming and agri-business industries.

Senate Confirms Brosius As Ag Secretary

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Spring.

On the day of the year the nation has officially set aside to recognize the importance of agriculture, Charles Brosius, of West Grove, was confirmed in the state Senate as the Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture.

Brosius, who with his wife Jane and three sons, has continued a mushroom growing business started by his grandfather on their dairy farm in 1915, was nominated by Gov. Tom Ridge earlier this month to head the department.

Support for the nomination has been strong from all agricultural organizations representing agriculture.

One of the first official acts as fully confirmed secretary was to greet participants to the Penn's Agri-Women Ag Day luncheon, held in the state Capitol. In fact, he was confirmed by the Senate about the same time as the luncheon.

Last week, Brosius was before the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee for a confirmation hearing. The committee is a body that can lead the rest of the Senate into favoring or disfavoring a nominee as agriculture secretary.

Brosius was fully supported.

In his presentation in the hearing, Brosius said that his meetings with legislators following the announcement of his nomination "... demonstrated that all of you have a strong interest in Pennsylvania agriculture, so we have an important interest in common."

Brosius briefly reviewed his family business that is run by his sons and employs 39 full-time, and 18 part-time people.

The business ships a tractor trailer load of mushrooms five nights per week to markets in New York City, as well as serving markets in Lancaster and Harrisburg.

"In my meetings with Governor Ridge, we discussed many things, but I think he was most interested in the economic aspects of farming and in doing what we can do to help our 51,000 farm families operate profitable businesses, businesses that all of our customers rely on to provide safe, high quality food products.

"I think that when we evaluate our farm policies, we should look at helping the farmer to make a profit, and not try to measure our efforts by looking at how much money the commonwealth has spent, or how many people or programs we authorize to solve their problems.

"Agricultural profitability is not some new concept. Twice in the last two years, the leaders of most of the Pennsylvania agricultural organizations met here in Harrisburg to identify issues of common concern.

"During both of those so-called 'Ag-Agenda' meetings, the delegates agreed the top priority should be to ensure the viability of Pennsylvania's farms and agribusinesses.

"If farmers have the opportunity to operate profitable businesses, they will supply the products that please and satisfy our citizens — our customers — providing the nutrition needed for good health, while strengthening the economy of the rural communities of Pennsylvania.

"As the commonwealth works to protect farmers and consumers, our regulatory philosophy should also be results-driven.

"When a food inspector goes out to look at a processing plant, his or her goal should be to solve the problems — to improve food safety as fast as that can be accomplished.

"We think that an inspector who finds problems should have suggestions and advice.

"Yes, of course, some people have to be dragged into compliance, but in agribusiness, most farmers sincerely want to produce and deliver the best possible products to the consumer.

"The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has very little interest in punishing farmers or food processors for violations of regulations. Our interest is in safe food and a clean environment. And on those issues, farmers are even more concerned than consumers or environmental activists.

"They (farmers) rely on a clean environment for crop production and for animal health. In addition, they all know — from experience — what happens to the best marketing efforts if one person gets sick from a food-borne organism, or if an outbreak of animal disease occurs.

"Pennsylvania's farmers and processors are looking for ways to improve their operations and sell more products. Efforts to help them achieve those goals will preserve farms and businesses, help create new activity, and vitalize our economy."

Brosius also said that the state needs to take a lead role in helping to expand the markets for Pennsylvania-produced products, both domestically and internationally.

"Our department (PDA) does intend to get into the marketing business. We plan to act as facilitator — to open the doors of opportunity. USDA forcasts a record-breaking year for U.S. agricultural exports, and we intend to help Pennsylvania's farmers find and tap into that success," he said.

Brosius discussed the favorable location of the state to transporting products to all markets, because of relatively close proximity to international ports.

"Governor Ridge's vision for Pennsylvania includes job creation though the Keystone Export Strategy," he said. "The Department of Agriculture will team up to work with the Department of Commerce to implement that strategy. It's expected to create 100,000 new jobs while raising the commonwealth's export potential to $5 billion over four years.

"The governor has pledged hands-on involvement with that strategy, which will be good for the state's companies and workers. We intend to make agriculture an important part of the export expansion."

Brosius detailed examples of what kinds of cooperative effort within state government he expects will help attain that growth. Further he called for less of a tax burden for farmers.

"I think that Pennsylvania's efforts toward farmer-friendly regulation and market expansion should be accompanied by major improvements in the tax climate for agriculture. Every farm and agricultural processor in Pennsylvania can realize a better bottom line when the tax burden is reduced — and those earnings can be realized without increasing consumer food prices.

"Processing plants create jobs, and because they buy the crops and livestock that our farms produce, they also create new markets for our growers.

"So, when Pennsylvania makes its tax climate more attractive than competing states — and processors decide to come here — those new or relocations will expand markets for farm products," he said.

He also said that while state government helps all of this come about, at the same time, "We need to help them defend their farms from modern pressures that threaten their operations.

"The Farmland Preservation Program, the Clean and Green Program, and various protective programs for farmers came from this General Assembly, where each of you has had a hand in helping agriculture.

"As those protections are maintained and expanded, we'll have to look at new issues, such as continued funding, and property rights, and increased pressure from development.

"We are faced with the constant threat of deadly microorganisms and new diseases that are creating new challenges for animal health and food safety experts. As we address those challenges, we'll also have to work together to help farmers deal with cuts in federal agriculture programs.

"Even changes to the school lunch program may have substantial impact on farmers in Pennsylvania."

Brosius talked about work started at the federal level to work on a 1995 Farm Bill.

"While we can't accurately predict what the new Farm Bill will be like, we can be sure it will make changes that will affect Pennsylvania's farm families.

"With our common interest in agriculture, let us work together to team up to meet these new challenges."

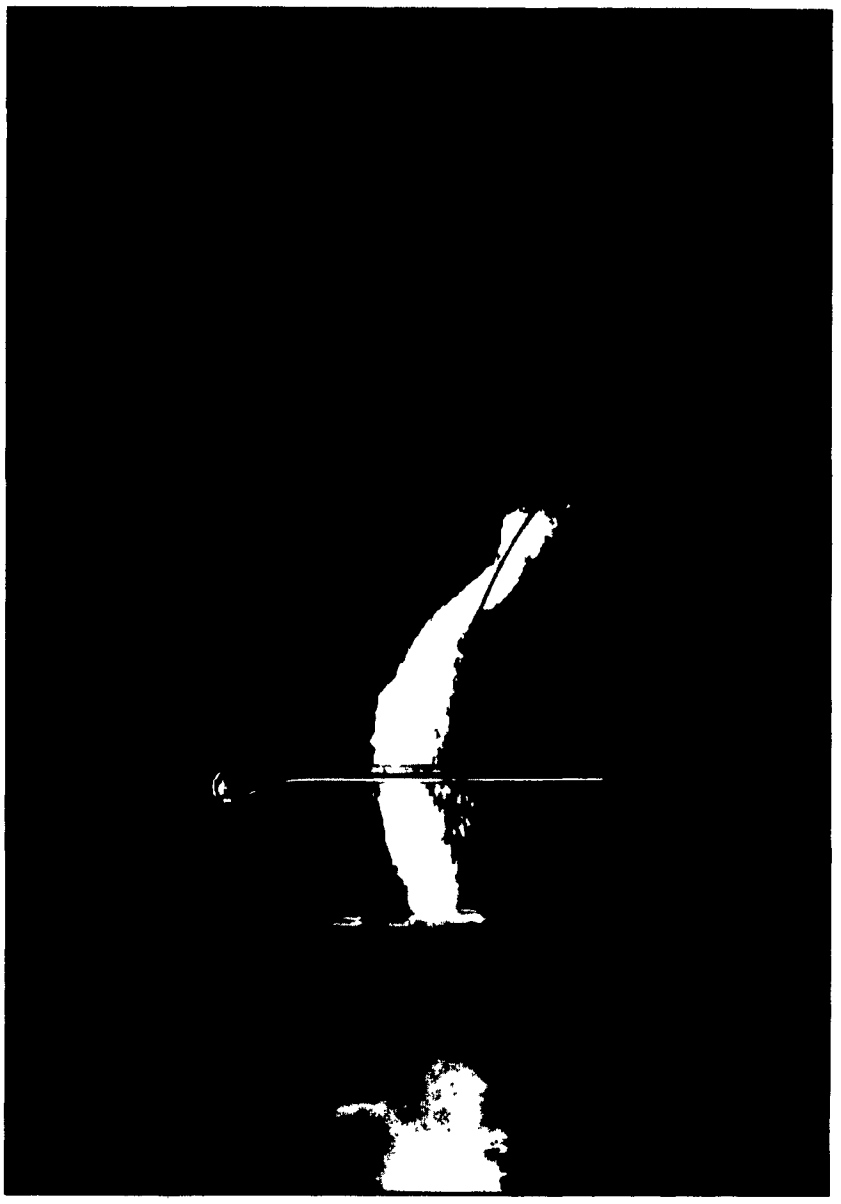
AIM™

for the competitive advantage!



The introduction of the AIM technology has created a lot of excitement among area producers. Lancaster County field tests indicate why. The test results were taken from 13 herds representing in excess of 493 cows. These herds represented a cross section of various sizes, feeding programs, and management levels. Results from producers using existing Master Mix technology or competitive nutritional programs were compared.

What an Impact!

AIM (Amino Acid Impact Management) represents the third generation of industry leading patented protein technology from Master Mix Feeds and is the direct result of Master Mix Feeds' continued commitment to research. AIM technology focuses on increasing the total essential amino acid flow to the small intestine. AIM feeds feature higher rumen undegraded protein (RUP) levels with defined concentrations of lysine and methionine using highly palatable, highly digestible plant protein sources, for optimal protein efficiency.

Pigs, Pork, Family Keep Life Exciting At Schick Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Pigs are everywhere at the Schick farm in rural Kutztown.

Visitors to the farm expect the pigs to be in the pig houses. Which they are — 230 sows with hundreds of offspring in various growing stages.

But what is unexpected is a prolific conglomeration of pigs in all sizes and shapes scattered throughout the yard and the Schicks' home. There's a large copper weather vane sporting a pig and a hefty pottery pig in the front yard. Inside the home in every shape and size imaginable are part of Anna Marie's pig collection.

"I have no idea how many I have. I lost count, but many are packed away in boxes," said Anna Marie.

It's no surpise to hear her say, "I love pigs."

That applies to real ones and fake ones.

Another thing she loves is pork.

"It's always been my favorite meat," she said.

Anna Marie is such an expert on cooking pork that she teaches classes as a representative for the National Pork Producers Council and Hatfield Meats.

"I like to cook and I like to promote the product," Anna Marie said of the dual combination.

Producing and promoting pork are not traits passed down through the generations.

"My husband and I are first-generation Americans," Anna Marie said. "We got into farming by default."

Her husband Herbert's family and Anna Marie's family settled in Philadelphia when they first arrived from their home country Germany.

When the two were teen-agers, they met and later married. In 1960, the Schicks and an older couple purchased the Berks County farm where the Schicks continue to live. They started with 98 acres and have increased it to 250 acres over the years.

Anna Marie said when they first moved on the farm, they had heard that Pennsylvania imported much of its pork. They decided to raise pork. The other couple in partnership with them decided to drop out.

"They were older and were not interested in expansion, but we needed to think of the future because we had three children to support," Anna Marie said.

Those beginning years were a bit stringent financially. But the close-knit extended families of the Schicks helped them build a farrowing house and get the farm in shape.

The Schicks' raise hogs from birth to market as independent producers and have never raised hogs under contract.

"It's always been a roller coaster with prices. When you have a good year, you put a little aside for a bad year," Anna Marie said.

While surviving the recent seige of low prices for hogs and still not seeing a break-even price, Anna Marie said that she has learned along the way that "there's not too much in this life worth getting upset about.

"My favorite saying is, 'This too shall pass,'" she said.

It's a philosophy that has seen enabled the family to work harmoniously together.

The Schicks' three children are now married and live near the family farm. The two sons, Otto and Paul, continue to work on the farm. Both are good mechanics and fix the equipment. Paul also sells livestock equipment and buildings under the business name, Schick Enterprises.

Herb is the secretary-treasurer for the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council.

Anna Marie does the office work for both the farm and Schick Enterprises.

The Schick's daughter's husband manages Agway Store in Kutztown. Herbert does some part-time hauling for Agway and hauls his own corn and soybean meal.

The Shicks devised a cooling system in the hog houses to keep inside temperatures constant during summer and winter months. A heat exchanger allows incoming and outcoming air to pass and temper it. The GEO thermal system is set up to close or open it during the summer and winter months. Air is drawn from the attic and run underground. PVC pipe also runs under the flooring to take out gases and fumes.

Several different houses are erected on the property to hold the pigs during different growing stages.

The manure is emptied into a lagoon. The neighbor who farms the Schicks' acreage spreads the manure.

Anna Marie said the family has never farmed the ground but concentrated strictly on raising pigs.

In addition to helping with the pigs and teaching pork cookery, Anna Marie likes to sew. She prefers tailoring and is a member of the Sewing Guild of Berks County.

"I seldom sit and watch TV," Anna Marie said. "There are so many other things to do."

Gardening, canning, and mowing acres of grass occupy much of the warmer months of the year. The Schicks dug out a large pond on the property that the family uses for swimming, boating, and fishing.

"My kids bring me the most satisfaction," Anna Marie said. "The kids" refers to her own three children plus six grandchildren.

Family tradition is to maintain close family ties. Anna Marie's mother, who is 92 years old, lives on an adjoining property. Although her mind continues to be

(Turn to Page B4)

The Schicks' daughter Cindy and husband Tom Fenstermacher.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

The Schicks' youngest son Paul and his wife Susie.

The Schicks' home is in Berks County, but most of the 250 acres surrounding it is in Lehigh County. The Schicks installed this pond and build the bridge that bridged a swamp before the family cleared the land.

The Schicks' oldest son Otto with his wife Renee and daughter Kelly.

Pigs, Pork, Family Keep

sharp — she can recite volumes of poetry — arthritis prevents her from getting around. Anna Marie takes her lunch every morning and Herb brings her to the house every night for supper. Anna Marie and several of the grandchildren clean for her.

Anna Marie said that she began pork promotion about six years ago. She doesn't need a set promotion to get her message across. Her words of advice to every one is "Eat more pork. It's lean. It's good for you."

She said, "The biggest mistake when cooking pork is to overcook it. Pork should only be cooked to an internal temperature of 160 degrees; otherwise, it may become tough or stringy."

A slightly pink color in fresh roasted or grilled pork means tender, juicy eating.

Readers may send for free recipes featuring pork. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Recipe Folder, 1631 Grimm Rd, Kutztown, PA 19530.

Here is one of the Schicks' favorite recipes that is quick and easy to make.

MICROWAVE PORK ROAST

2-3 pound boneless loin

Sprinkle with Hatfield's Meat Seasoning. If desired, fill loin with sauerkraut, grated apples, pureed prunes or stuffing desired. Place in glass dish with fat side down. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave at 70 percent power for 7½ minutes per pound. Half way through the cooking time, turn meat fat side up for the remainder of cooking time. (Make sure the loin is weighed after it is filled to determine the exact measurement because cooking time must be exact). Remove pork from microwave and let set 15 minutes before cutting — this resting time is important as meat continues to cook.

The Schicks' grandchildren surround Anna Marie's mother who is 92 years old.

"Herb is the wind beneath my wings," Anna Marie said of her husband. "When he's not around, things don't go well."

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 3

Group 3 of the Berks County Society of Farm Women held its February meeting at the home of Sonya Moyer, Koch Road, Boyertown. Fourteen members responded to the roll call question, "What is your favorite love song?"

Several upcoming dates were noted: March 28—30th anniversary party of Group 5 at Conrad Weiser High School; April 6—Bingo at Berks Heim; May 23—Annual Spring Rally at Dickinson College in Carlisle.

A "pound auction" was held at the conclusion of the business meeting with the proceeds given to the American Heart Association.

The March meeting will be held on Monday, March 27, at the home of Leona Stauffer, Indian Lane, Boyertown. The theme for the evening will be "Show and Tell."

Berks Society 6

Members of the Berks County Society of Farm Women Group #6 toured the Kiwi Plant in February. After the tour the group enjoyed lunch at the Yellow House Hotel and held their meeting.

Members were asked to bring ideas for a trip to the next meeting.

The group was invited to a 30th anniversary for Group #5 at Conrad Weiser High School, March 28, at 7:30.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Barbara Kelchner, Oley.

That was all that remained in the bag stored in the cool, moist cavern beneath the garage that is our ground cellar. Few new homes built today feature a ground cellar among their amenities. Only folks with old houses like ours still have these underground storage facilities.

But, who stores fresh foodstuffs all winter anymore, anyway?

In the days when our ground cellar served a real purpose, its spacious capacity would have been chocked full of containers of potatoes, apples, carrots, maybe a lingering head or two of cabbage. And, if great-grandma had gone to her ground cellar in late March and came up with only three potatoes, she would have looked ahead with worry. The potato was the staple, backbone, vegetable-type food of her family's diet. And the fresh ones that would be grown in the garden couldn't possibly be ready until at least early to mid-July.

The timeless family question — "What's for supper?" — would have posed a real dilemma.

Even if Grandma did still have adequate stores of potatoes on hand by the next planting season, their natural aging process would cause deterioration in quality. The skins would be shriveling and wrinkling, making them hard to peel. Fat, white sprouts would be forming at the "eyes."

I carry the three potatoes, large ones fortunately, to the kitchen, pare them and mix them with fresh sausage meat, chopped onions, and celery for a favorite family casserole. And then remember to write "potatoes" on the supermarket list hanging on the side of the refrigerator.

"You are so spoiled," I mutter to myself. Out of potatoes? So what? Just put it on the list; there will be plenty at the supermarket. No waiting three or four months for the new crop, while scrounging through dwindling supplies for the most edible remaining ones.

Another scarcity Grandma may have incurred by spring was apples. If the crop had been short or they had not stored well for some reason, the basket bottoms might be showing through. Fall apple harvest was a long way from spring and there were few fruit alternatives. No one had even heard of a kiwi back then.

We do still have a few apples, though they never made it to the ground cellar this year. Part of a basket of nice baking apples grown by a friend hung around all winter, in a plastic feed bag covered with a heavy piece of carpet, stored just outside the greenhouse. The ground cellar was so warm last fall that I just covered them well and left them out on the coolness of the shady ground. And winter remained so mild that what's left is still there in the bag smooth, firm and sweet.

Wasting food grates against my nature, but, even if the few remaining apples had not stored as well, it would not have been a catastrophe. The orchard markets a mile up the road from us still have plenty. And at very reasonable prices.

"Your are so spoiled," my conscience nags.

That night on the bi-monthly supermarket run, I stock up on potatoes, regular and bakers. Fat, juicy grapefruits, firm clusters of grapes and a nice bunch of bananas. Carrots, fat and sweet, not shriveled from home underground storage. Lush, leafy lettuce and crisp celery.

Grandma would have marveled at the freshness of such unheard-of, late-March food treasures. And she'd have been "plum boggled" at the more exotic produce items, chayote and plantains, jicama, starfruits, daikon, gourmet mushrooms.

I am so spoiled.

And grateful that running out of something like potatoes occasionally reminds me to be thankful for it.

Lentils Make A Come Back

Although lentils and dried beans have been eaten for centuries, it's only recently that they are becoming trendy in restaurants and elegant cooking. They are turning up in soups, stuffings, salads, sandwiches, casseroles, and more.

Lentils and beans are good for you. They are low in fat, calories, and sodium and high in carbohydrates, fiber and protein. And, they have no cholesterol.

Lentils are versatile, easy to prepare, quick to cook, inexpensive, satisfying and very nutritious. It takes a bit longer to prepare dried beans because they should be soaked eight hours before cooking. You can hurry this process by the quick soak method: Place 1 cup beans and 3 cups water in pan. cover and bring to a boil for 2 minutes. Turn off heat. Let stand for one hour. Proceed with recipe or keep in refrigerator for two days before cooking or freeze until ready to use.

Lentils and dried beans, also called legumes, play a significant role in treating and preventing obesity, cardiovascular disease, hypertension, and diabetes. As a good source of fiber, both soluble and insoluble, lentils are believed to help reduce cholesterol and blood triglyceride levels.

Because legumes are vegetables, they do not supply all amino acids necessary to make a complete protein. But that can be easily solved by combining it with food that contains the lacking amino acid methionine. By adding raisins, nuts, seeds, meat, dairy products or eggs, lentil dishes will contain a complete protein with all the amino acids needed.

Lentil-barley soup, lentil-rice salad, or lentil-cheese quiche are complete protein dishes.

Legumes can be an important source of iron, especially for women, whose iron needs are greater. Eating lentils with foods high in Vitamin C, such as tomatoes, green pepper, broccoli, and citrus fruits or juices, helps the body absorb iron more effectively.

Legumes also provide potassium, especially important for people taking medications for heart disease and hypertension. Potassium is also thought to help lower blood pressure and reduce the risk of stroke.

QUICK TO COOK

To cook lentils, rinse and pick over, then simmer on top of the range for 20 minutes or covered in a microwave on high in water (twice the amount of water as lentils) or as the recipe directs.

Drain, if needed, and they're ready to eat.

Add seasonings or flavorful ingredients to the cooking water, since lentils absorb flavors well. Do not add acid ingredients such as tomatoes or lemon juice until later, since they will slow cooking. Salt should be added later.

Friendship First, Competition Second

"Friendship first, competition second." That's the chant I taught campers prior to the weekly water carnival when I was a counselor at summer camp. Across the state, softball and baseball teams are beginning a spring schedule. This annual event reminds me to pause and think through some assumptions that I hold about competition.

Competition is all around us! We vie with other businesses for a significant market niche, compete with our siblings for attention, challenge classmates for academic or athletic superiority, and dare other organizations to match our contributions to community fund drives. Everyone competes. It's a way of life in our society.

But how much is enough? Are there other ways to succeed? What are the costs and benefits of competition to children, especially young children.

Competition comes in several forms—the I win—you lose situations (external) and the internal striving to be the best he can be. I'm sure you have an opinion about the merits of each kind. Surprisingly, David and Roger Johnson and their colleagues have done substantial research and found that an environment of cooperation rather than external competition is the one that produces the superior performance. Children in these situations also recorded increased self-esteem as a result of the experience. Parents should be reminded that children ages five to eight are at a critical stage in developing their own self-concept. Carole Ames, another researcher, reports that losing in a competitive experience magnifies the negative effect on self-esteem more than winning enhances the positive effect. Kohn agrees, "To lose—particularly in a public event—can be psychologically detrimental even for the healthiest among us."

Competition may break monotony but cooperation brings out the highest levels of excellence. Many authors have collected games and learning activities that are based on cooperation. These games are challenging and require strategizing and energy, and yet they teach the valuable concept of teamwork, too. And they're fun!

Children sometimes reject competitive events because they aren't enjoyable. In 1988, the Youth Sports Institute survyed young people ages 10 to 18. It found that about one-third of these kids drop out of sports each year. Most say they left because it was no longer fun. As children mature to senior high school, they are mentally more prepared to balance a mix of cooperative and competitive situations. They can then make adjustments in the kinds of activities thev are involved in. These choices will differ from person to person.

An adult's actions can make a difference. If you know young people who are involved in competitive activities, you can help balance the negative effects of competition.

•Try asking, "How did you enjoy you game today? What did you learn?" rather than "Did you win?"

•Allow youth to pick which activities and how many they will participate in. Don't push a child into competitive activities because, "you think it would do them good."

•Protect children from other adults who may not have the kids' best interests in mind.

•Be realistic about a child's individual abilities. Make sure each girl or boy knows that you love them and are NOT disappointed in them, win or lose. Emphasize improved performance, not winning.

•Control your own emotions and behavior. Don't relive your competitive past glories or disappointmens through others.

•Encourage recognition of all participants for their growth and unique contributions to an event.

An excellent way for adults to say, "You're important to me. I'm proud of you!" to a child is to take her picture. Keep your camera loaded with film and ready to record their accomplishments, moments of joy, the painstaking stages of a project. Then review old "celebration" pictures on a regular basis.

Competition, when taken to an extreme, can lead to cheating and unfair practices. It may push a child NOT to help a friend perfect a skill because in the future that friend may be a competitor.

As you make your choices about competition for yourself and as you guide other family members, consider this scene described by researcher Alfie Kohn: "At the elementary school, fifth and sixth-graders gave a square-dance program with parents and children of other grades as the audience. The youngsters wore colorful costumes of Western flair and flavor, and it was as charming and delightful a performance as you're likely to see in a school anywhere. They danced with all the exuberance of healthy childhood, and, obviously, they were having a wonderful time. The audience had fun, too. It was young American, in the best tradition, but at the end, a committee of judges announced the winners. One group of fifth-graders and one of the sixth-graders were pronounced 'best,' and the other dancers went away forgetting the fun they'd had, remembering only "they lost."

Lentils Make A Come Back

CHILI BEAN BURGERS

2 cups cooked or canned pinto beans or lentils
1 egg, beaten
1 small onion, finely chopped
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon salt, optional
½ cup crushed cereal or bread crumbs
1 tablespoon vegetable oil

In a large mixing bowl, mash beans with a fork. Add egg, onion, and seasonings to bowl. Combine the mixture in the bowl with a spoon. Place cereal or bread crumbs on a clean plate. Shape ⅓ cup bean mixture into patty. Coat patty with crumbs on both sides. Repeat with remaining bean mixture. Heat oil in the frying pan and brown patties on each side for 2-3 minutes.

Omit salt if you use canned beans. Try curry powder instead of chili powder. Top with cheese and serve on a hamburger bun if desired.

BLACK BEAN SOUP

1 pound dried black beans
4 tablespoons bacon drippings
3 large onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 cups tomatoes, mashed
1 teaspoon sweet basil
½ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon marjoram
Pinch ground coriander
2 to 3 ham hocks, split
6 cups beef broth
Salt and fresh ground pepper
4 tablespoons wine vinegar

Soak beans overnight in enough cold water to cover or cover with boiling water and boil for 2 minutes, remove from heat, cover and let stand one hour. After soaking, cook covered until beans are just tender — about 2 hours. Use soaking water to cook beans.

Meanwhile, cook onions and garlic in bacon drippings until just lightly browned. Add garlic, seasonings, and tomatoes. Cook 3 minutes. Put aside. When beans are tender, add above mixture, ham hocks, and beef stock. Cover loosely and cook about 2 hours on low heat. Stir occasionally. Remove ham hocks and cool, trim, and cut into small pices. Puree soup in blender or food processor in small batches. Reheat, add ham pieces, and vinegar.

Consuming Thoughts

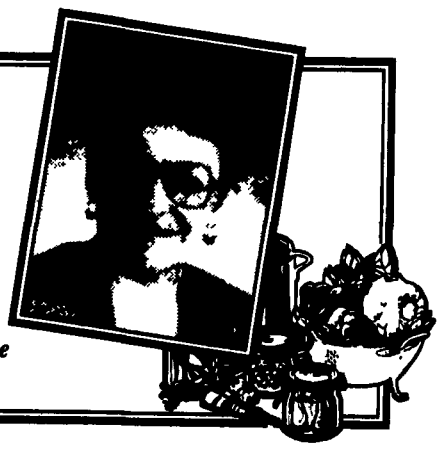
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Do you know how you can add even more flavor to an already delicious fish? Dress it up, of course. Seafood stuffings, or dressings, add variety to fish preparations. A stuffing also serves as an additional main food in the meal.

Stuffings can range from simple to elaborate. They can be easy as a basic bread or vegetable stuffing or can contain shellfish or other meat.

Celery, onion and spices are among the basic ingredients of most stuffings. Basil, bay leaf, dill, oregano, paprika, pepper, seasoned peppers, tarragon, thyme, rosemary, sage, marjoram, chervil, chives, fennel, ginger and garlic nicely complement the flavor of seafood. Try commercially available Italian seasoning or lemon and pepper blends or blends created especially for seafood. Pair up any of these herbs, spices and seasonings with butter or margarine, and you'll be able to create even more flavor options for your seafood. Always add, omit or vary ingredients to suit your personal taste. Just be sure that flavors do not overwhelm the fish.

Stuffed fish recipes sometimes call for sauces. Although they provide additional variety, they can often be omitted.

You need to make about one-half cup of stuffing per pound of fish. If you have extra stuffing, place it in a lightly greased baking dish and cook it along with the fish.

Always make stuffings just before coorking. Never stuff fish ahead of time, even if you're going to refrigerate it. And if you have leftovers, remove the stuffing and store it and the fish separately.

Handle stuffings lightly. Place them loosely rather than packing them. Packing will cause them to be heavy and doughy.

Most recipes for stuffed fish call for a whole fish. Although these recipes are delicious, you may hear complaints from family members because the head and tail fin are generally kept on the fish. It is difficult to cut through the backbone, especially if the fish is large. And because of this, the servings are usually not very attractive. The bones in most stuffed fish are an even bigger nuisance.

Because of these problems, you may choose to use only skinless, boneless fillets in stuffed fish recipes. You can still use the stuffing recipes in whole fish, if you prefer.

Rolled fillets can be fastened with toothpicks for cooking. Or you can roll them and place them in lightly greased muffin tins for easy cooking.

If you place stuffing between two fillets, you may want to leave the skin on the top fillet. This holds in moisture. Just remove the skin before serving the fish.

If you choose to stuff whole fish, you can use either small fish or those weighing up to six pounds. Either remove the head and tail, or leave them on. If you leave the head on, be sure the fish is degilled. Lightly place the stuffing inside the fish cavity. Fasten with toothpicks, metal cooking pins or sew with heavy thread. After the fish is baked, remove the top skin.

As always, remember that you can substitute species. If a recipe calls for flounder and only snapper is available, don't be afraid to substitute. Just remember to exchange similar species — white fish for white fish, lean for lean.

Chesapeake's Swans Develop Into Royal Pain

ST. MICHAELS, Md.—The swan, full-grown by then, still slept in their son's bedroom. The Gibsons began to wonder, as fall leaves glided down the Miles River behind their house, if the long-necked beauty would ever join the others.

"Cyggie would do fine in the wild," says Linda Gibson, one of many people who feed a growing flock of mute swans that live in this shallow, marshy section of Chesapeake Bay. "It's ideal swan habitat out there."

Too ideal, as it turns out. The exquisitely lovely mute swan—symbol of romantic destiny, beloved hero of fairy tales—is fast earning a reputation among North American wildlife biologists as a habitat-hogging cygnet machine.

The issue, the scientists say, is how to control burgeoning flocks without riling a public that is attached to the mute's arched wings, gracefully curved neck and venerable history as the bird of European royalty.

The outsize, fiercely territorial immigrant from Northern Europe and Asia monopolizes the same limited habitat needed by the less elegant, native tundra swan and an array of other water birds.

The much smaller tundra, formerly known as the whistling swan for the sound its wings make in flight, migrates between arctic and temperate regions of North America. So does its larger cousin, the trumpeter swan, which winters in the interior West. Both species have been the object of extensive efforts to restore flocks that were nearly wiped out by hunters during the 19th century.

Victorian-era Americans imported mutes to grace estate ponds and city parks. In recent decades, rapidly reproducing descendants of these birds have begun to take over the wetlands used by tundras, especially from Michigan to the East Coast. An estimated 12,000 wild mutes live in the eastern flyway.

Greediness is the mute swan's hallmark. Unlike other birds, mutes won't share nesting territory with different species. A pair, tenderly herding its brood with soft honks, can transform instantly into a hissing, wing-furling duo of torpedoes. Anything larger than a sparrow quickly learns to steer clear of a territory as large as 25 acres. The powerful swans have been known to kill dogs and even attack humans.

Crabs, fish and other birds that feed on submerged vegetation lose out to the mute's voracious appetite. The 25-to-35-pound bird doesn't just graze marsh grass; it wolfs down 8 to 10 pounds a day, ripping the plants out by the roots. Because mutes don't migrate, marsh beds don't have a chance to recover.

"What's left for waterfowl that come for only a few months? Mutes are destroying habitat," complains Lucretia Krantz, associate director of the Wildfowl Trust of North America, based in Grasonville, Md.

The Chesapeake mutes number only an estimated 2,000, but scientists already link them to troublesome changes in the fragile bay's ecosystem.

Where mutes have moved in, black ducks have disappeard. In the upper bay, rare terns and skimmers are dwindling because their tiny, ground-level nests are trampled by lead-footed mutes that congregate to molt on the birds' breeding islands.

Recently, half of the estuary's painstakingly restored population of 40,000 tundra swans began passing up the Chesapeake entirely to winter in North Carolina, where so far there are no mutes.

The real concern, though, is not so much what already has happened as what could happen if the mute is allowed to continue reproducing at its current explosive rate.

The Chesapeake's mute population descended from only nine birds that escaped from a private preserve in the mid-1960s, a 220-fold increase. That rate extrapolates in another 30 years to nearly 450,000, almost half the number of all waterfolw that now winter on the bay.

"The potential for reproduction is out of control," says Doug Forsell, a wildlife biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's bay field office. "The mute is a varmint species that we're going to have to spend a lot of money controlling."

Federal law doesn't apply to mutes, a non-native species, so states may deal with them as they see fit. At least six states on the eastern flyway have control programs, although their approaches vary, usually according to regulations that existed before mutes became a problem. The neighboring Chesapeake Bay states of Virginia and Maryland illustrate the point.

Virginia, which allows limited hunting of tundra swans, has few mutes. "Mutes that wander down there probably get shot during hunting season," Forsell tells National Geographic. "We're glad someone's keeping them from spreading to Virginia."

Under an old law aimed at protecting native tundras that was enacted before mute swans appeared, Maryland prohibits killing swans of any species. So far, the state's mute-control program has been limited to destroying eggs, an expensive and often unsuccessful approach.

Officials in the Maryland Department of Natural Resources want authority to cull mutes. But, fearing a no-win confrontation with animal-rights activists, they haven't asked for it. The officials hope to build public support through a televised video that explains the problems mutes create for native wildlife.

But winning over mute-lovers like Linda Gibson promises to be a tough sell.

"I know real bird people don't like mute swans, but they don't hurt anybody," says Gibson, whose family goes through 100 to 200 pounds of corn a week feeding mutes.

Cyggie, the young swan adopted by the Gibsons, finally flew their coop before Christmas, when he took up with a young swan with a broken wing. But he keeps in touch.

"Cyggie still knows us. When we call, he turns his head our way and talks to us," Gibson says. She would like to see him choose a mate. "It sure would be fun to have some more little cygnets running around here."

Although beautiful to look at, mute swans are moving into disrepute in some places because of their voracious ways and spiraling population. On Maryland's Chesapeake Bay, other species have disappeared or diminished since mutes, originally from Northern Europe and Asia, set up housekeeping there.

Tundra swans, smaller and less aggressive than mute swans, traditionally have spent winters on the Chesapeake Bay. But in recent years, mutes, which refuse to share habitat with other species, have driven thousands of tundras out of the Maryland part of the bay. Many displaced tundras no winter in North Carolina.

Ladies' Day Out Combines Fun And Education

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — It was a "ladies day out," at the Dairy Farm Women's Seminar sponsored by the Bedford County Extension Office at the Arena Restaurant. The offerings were varied enough to please everyone.

Setting the pace for those farm wives actively involved in the farming operation was Susan Fox, Bedford County extension agent, who talked on Raising a Profitable Dairy Herd.

Beginning with healthy calves coming from well-fed, healthy, genetically supervised, and well-managed herds, Susan suggested a good diet following weaning with good quality free-choice grain, high quality forage; leafing hay; and plenty of fresh, clean, and abundant water.

From two to six months of age, calves should have four to six pounds of grain daily with 16% crude protein.

Limited pasturing can begin from four to six months with additional grain and supplemental hay.

A healthy herd begins with consulting your veterinarian on vaccinations. Be certain to include fly and lice control as well as worming.

"Young cattle can pick up worms from droplets of water on the grass," Susan explains. "And worms can rob a young cow of a lot of nutrition."

"Calves are a lot like children, more susceptible to disease."

Maturing calves need proper housing and when possible, should be grouped in lots of 3 to 5 animals with an age spread of no more than two months.

A large pen, gated free stall, counter slope barn, and gated bedded pad with 25 feet of square foot space; 18 inches of feed space; and minimal contact with older animals is recommended.

Full pasturing can begin at nine months with an additional trace of mineral sale. In the spring, add one ounce of magnesium oxide, bloat control, and grain.

The cost of raising a heifer can vary from a low of $892.53 to a high of $1,514.52 with an average of $1,225.27.

"Heifers," concluded Susan, "are the teenagers on your farm. And, they can't be ignored."

At the conclusion of the meeting each of the 18 ladies present made a "tussy mussy" of dried flowers. Demonstrating the craft is Tony Blith of the Blair County Extension Office.

Recommended calving weight for those matured heifers is about 1,200 pounds.

Concluding this portion of the program with a survey on group heifer feeding management the following conclusions were reached.

Dietary crude protein level on an as-fed basis should be 16 to 18% for six month old heifers; 14 to 16% for 12 month old heifers; and 12 to 14% for 18 month old heifers.

Average calving age goal should be 24 months with about 2/3 still calving at greater than 22 to 24 months.

Calf-heifer mortality rate should be kept under 5%.

Desirable weights are 400

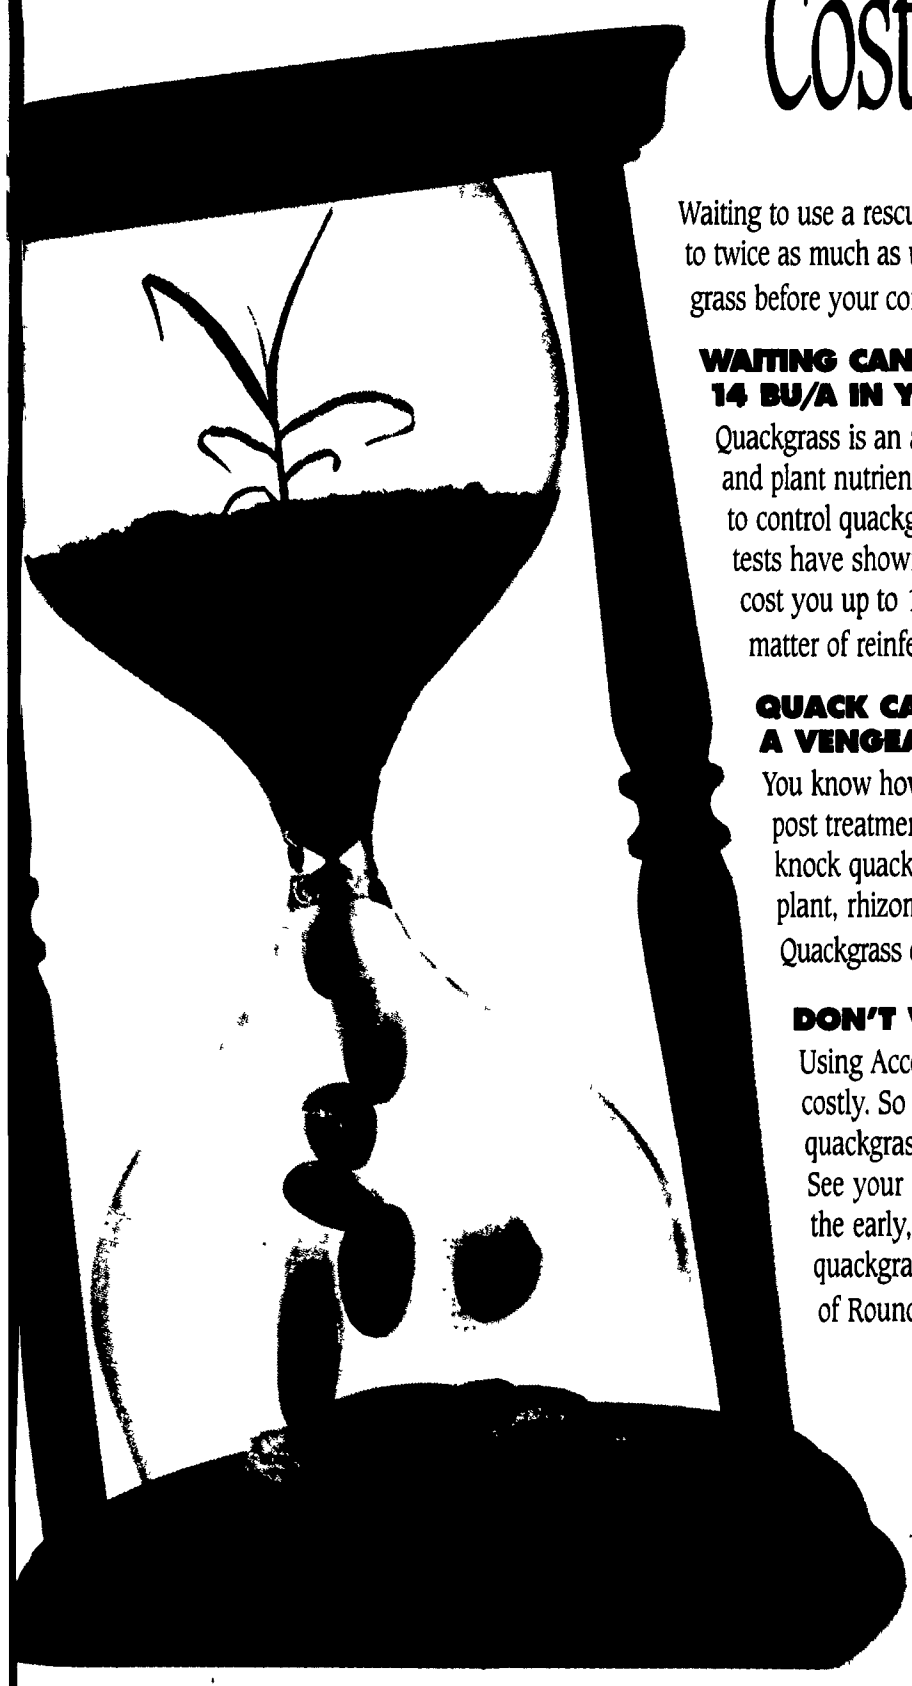
Waiting To Control Quackgrass Can Cost You Plenty.



Waiting to use a rescue treatment like Accent* can cost you up to twice as much as using Roundup® herbicide to stop quackgrass before your corn is up. But that's not all you'll pay...

WAITING CAN COST YOU 14 BU/A IN YIELD

Quackgrass is an aggressive competitor for soil moisture and plant nutrients. And if you wait until your corn is up to control quackgrass, you've already lost yield. University tests have shown that waiting to control quackgrass can cost you up to 14 bushels per acre. And then there's the matter of reinfestation...

QUACK CAN COME BACK WITH A VENGEANCE

You know how tough quackgrass can be. Unfortunately, post treatments like Accent don't. They often just knock quack back instead of controlling the entire plant, rhizomes and all, like Roundup. The result? Quackgrass comes back and you're back to square one.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE

Using Accent after the damage is done can be costly. So don't hesitate. Use Roundup to stop quackgrass before it robs you of yield and profit. See your dealer for the early, economical quackgrass control of Roundup.

Cook's • Question • Corner

ANSWER — Joanne Swords, Manheim, wanted a recipe for Cottleston pie, a British recipe. Thanks to Lucy Wright, Lineboro, Md., for sending the recipe from "The Pooh Cook Book," by Virginia H. Ellison and published by E.P. Dutton & Co. Inc., N.Y. The recipe is in response to the ditty from the book, "Winnie-the-Pooh," by A.A. Milne.

"Cottleston, Cottleston, Cottleston Pie
A fly can't bird, but a bird can fly.
Ask me a riddle and I reply:
Cottleston, Cottleston, Cottleston Pie."

Cottleston Pie

9-inch pie shell
¾ cup bite-size pieces cooked ham
3 eggs
2 cups whipping cream
¼ teaspoon salt
Pepper
Pinch nutmeg
1½ tablespoon butter, cut into dots
½ cup grated cheese

Bake the pie shell in preheated 425-degree oven. To keep the pie shell from sliding down the sides and puffing up from the bottom, prick well with the tines of a fork. Line the bottom with a double thickness of cheesecloth and cover with small clean stones, which you have gathered at the beach and washed or with one-inch raw rice. When finished baking, remove the rice and use it again and again.

Distribute the ham on the bottom of the baked pie shell. Beat eggs and cream with the seasonings in a bowl until thoroughly mixed. Pour on top of ham. Scatter the butter dots and cheese on top. Set on a rack in the middle of oven and bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 minutes until pie has puffed up and browned. Serve while hot.

ANSWER — Thanks to Jodi Lentz for sending an answer for Beth Ehrisman's question. Jodi writes that she graduated from East Juniata High School with Beth. Jodi writes, "Needless to say, I am delighted to attempt answering her question."

Although this recipe is called Russian Dressing, Jodie said that it has the flavor and taste of Catalina sweet and sour red dressing. She and her husband absolutely love it.

Russian Dressing

In a screw top jar, combine:
⅔ cup salad oil
½ cup ketchup
¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika

Cover; shake. Chill. Shake before serving. Makes 1¾ cups.

ANSWER — Helen Spencer, Troy, wanted recipes for spaghetti salad. Thanks to Kathi Salotti, Blairstown, N.J.; Carolyn Brymesser, Carlisle; Debbie Browe, Bennington, Vt.: Ruth Ann Burke, York, and others for sending recipes. Ruth Ann Burke writes that the recipe may be varied by using different types of pasta. She particularly likes rotelle. A lighter version may be made using no-fat Italian dressing.

Pasta Salad

1½ pounds fusilli (spigadoro) cooked
1 pound Virginia ham
1 pound turkey breast
1 pound provolone
2 cups sugar peas
1 head broccoli, steamed lightly
2 red peppers, julienned and steamed lightly
5 carrots, julienned strips, steamed lightly
2 jars Cara Mia artichokes
1 carton cherry tomatoes

Dressing:
1 bunch parsley, chopped
1 knob garlic
1 cup olive oil
½ cup red wine vinegar

Linguine Salad

1 pound linguine, cooked, drained
1 bottle Salad Supreme
1 bottle Zesty Italian Salad Dressing
1 large cucumber, cut up
1 large tomato, cut up

Mix together ingredients. Refrigerate overnight.

ANSWER — Josie Dolenti, Pottstown, wanted a recipe for making Whoopie Pies like those sold at Shady Maple Farmer's Market. She wanted to know how to make the filling without using egg whites because of the danger of salmonella poisoning. Thanks to Audrey Coleman, Elmer, N.J., for sending a recipe. She writes that she uses this filling in place of the one that calls for egg whites.

Filling — Use Italian Icing:

1 cup milk
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup butter (or half butter and half shortening)
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine milk and flour in a saucepan. Mix slowly, cook until thick. Set aside to cool. In a bowl, place 1 cup shortening, sugar, and vanilla. Beat. Add cooled milk mixture. (Must be cooled so butter doesn't melt). Beat well until shiny and fluffy like whipped cream. Place between two cookies.

Pumpkin Whoopie Pies

2 egg yolks
2 cups brown sugar
1 cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups cooked pumpkin
3 cups flour

Beat together egg yolks, brown sugar, and oil until smooth. Combine remaining ingredients. Drop by teaspoonful on a cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 minutes. Spread filling between two cookies.

Mary Deiter tells how she and her husband planted spring onions and green beans to earn enough money to buy materials to make a quilt. Using 800 yards of quilting thread, Mary spent 200 hours quilting the off-white quilt in the Forget-Me-Not pattern.

In between truck farming, working in a green house, volunteering at a hospital, and many other tasks, Mary finds time to quilt about one quilt a month. The quilt that will be sold for worldwide relief is not pictured as it's already been donated to MCC for the Pennsylvania Relief Sale scheduled for March 31-April 1 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Onions, String Beans And A Quilt Provide Money For World-Wide Relief

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Give Mary Deiter a $10 bill and with sweat, time, and talent, she will turn it into hundreds of dollars.

Mary said that her efforts in stretching a dollar began last year when she heard a sermon on talents at the Millersville Mennonite Church. Afterward, the deacon challenged the congregation to put the sermon into practice. He offered each member $10 as seed money to take home and multiply by combining the money with the talent God had given each one. The profit would then be given to overseas relief.

Mary and her husband Robert each took $10. They planted a crop of spring onions and green beans to sell.

Although the Deiters have planted produce for years on seven acres of their Lancaster County farm, the patch of green beans and onions was the most prolific ever.

"The beans just kept bearing and bearing. We picked them eight times," Mary said.

The Deiters sold the onions and green beans to stores and farmers' markets. With the proceeds, Mary purchased material to make a quilt.

She chose off-white material and had enough money left over to pay a woman to mark the material to be quilted in the Forget-Me-Not pattern.

"I wanted to have lots of close quilting because buyers prefer it," Mary said."

She used 800 yards of thread to quilt in feather and diamond patterns. The no-seam quilt is finished with scalloped edges. It required 200 hours of diligent quilting for 34 days.

The quilt will be auctioned at the 39th annual Pennsylvania Relief Sale held March 31 and April 1 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

All proceeds from the sale go toward worldwide relief and development efforts of the Mennonite Central Committee (MCC). MCC is the relief and development agency of the Mennonite and Brethren in Christ churches of North American. It has about 900 people working in 50 countries around the world.

"Mary's quilt is gorgeous," said Ann Roth, who is in charge of quilting projects at MCC's Resources Center in Ephrata.

Although it is not known how much the quilt will bring, it's certain to bring several hundred dollars.

It brings much satisfaction to Mary that the proceeds will be used for overseas relief efforts.

"Our church is using the (seed money) profits to help remove bombs dropped in Laos by the U.S. 20 years ago," Mary said.

When Laotians are working in their fields, these bombs sometimes explode and kill people.

"When I'm working in my garden, I think how scary it would be if a bomb could explode anytime without warning," Mary said. "We don't know how good we have it here."

Although Mary is quite modest about her efforts to raise money for world relief and likes to tell of the many other members in her church who raised money through novel ways, her project required squeezing work into her already demanding schedule.

In addition to helping her husband with truck farming, they both work four days a week from January through May at a local greenhouse. They both volunteer one morning at week at a Lancaster hospital. Robert also drives a van to haul senior citizens and handicapped persons. Mary quilts about one quilt a month year-round to sell.

"Fortunately, all my life I never needed much sleep," Mary said of her ability to work from 5 a.m. to 11 p.m.

"I grew up on a farm — the only girl with five brothers — and always liked working outside better than inside. And, I still do."

She and her husband have truck farmed for 32 years. Previously, they had a market stand at Southern Market, but when that closed down, they sold their produce to local supermarkets and auctions.

The couple has four married children and six grandchildren. Mary enjoys babysitting her grandchildren and playing the piano and organ.

The couple will celebrate their wedding anniversary in April by helping at the Relief Sale craft stand on Friday evening, staying overnight at a nearby motel, returning to the Relief sale the following day to watch the quilt sale that begins at 9 a.m. on April 1. Mary's quilt is #188 in the relief sale booklet.

Feed Sack Club To Hold First Convention

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — Feed sacks stretched many a housewife's penny by providing the material to stitch a dress for a daughter, curtains for the kitchen, and a quilt for the bed.

Those floral, geometric, and company logo prints, so prolific during the 1920s to 1940s, are still being circulated today. But, instead of women purchasing sacks of flour and feed at a feed mill, they are attaining the sacks by bartering, selling, and purchasing them through the Feed Sack Club.

Jane Clark Stapel, who founded the club in 1989, said the club now has more than 160 members scattered across the states.

Feed sacks are of historic interest for they remind many of the rural lifestyle during the 1920s-1940s.

Feed was often purchased from the company that provided the most attractive prints. A farm wife searched through the sacks in quest of the prettiest prints or for several in matching patterns if she were making a dress for herself or a sewing project that required several yards of fabric.

"The rural housewife utilized the bags to the fullest. After cutting out a dress, scraps of material were used to make quilts, pillow covers, underwear and other sewing projects."

Stapel travels across the country and lectures on feed sacks, uses, and historical interest.

In the rural community, the dresses were worn with pride. It was another matter in the urban community. Invariably, a guest attending one of Stapel's lectures will remark that they were embarrassed or ashamed to wear their feed sack clothing to town school where dresses of more expensive fabric were worn.

"There was a stigma attached to wearing clothing made from feed sacks," Stapel said.

Now those feed sacks are highly collectible and significant for their historic value.

Stapel said her own interest in feed sacks happened by chance. She had been living in rural Virginia and was searching for antique quilts and tops when she noticed a stack of neatly folded feed sacks. Intriqued by the colorful patterns and the history behind the feed sacks, Stapel asked to purchase some of the sacks. The owner expressed amazement that anyone would be interested in wanting feed sacks.

Stapel stuck a small notice in a quilt magazine. Soon she was inundated by responses from readers who wanted to trade six-inch squares of the feed sacks to make patchwork quilts.

When Stapel became aware of the interest in feed sacks, she formed a club and published a newsletter for members.

"Before I knew it, we had 80 members and we've been growing ever since," Stapel said of the club where all communication is done through the mail.

Members pay $10 annually to join the club. For that price, they receive Stapel's bimonthly newsletter, which includes a bit of history on the feed sack patterns, classified ads, announcements, and related information on feed sacks. A column called Feed Sack Feedback is an information exchange between readers.

Collectors purchase sacks intact or buy in swatches as small as two inches.

Some are interested in selected patterns of flowers or geometrics. Others are interesed in those printed with business logos.

Some stitch articles with the feed sacks while others accumulate swatches. Stapel has 6,000 swatches.

She said that people sometimes inquire, "How can you justify cutting into antique fabric?"

Her reply is, "It's being used for its intended use. Feed sacks were intended to be cut and used."

Quilters often trade squares with other seamtresses to stitch together quilts and wall hangings or just to collect swatches.

Although the heyday for printed feed bags was from the 1920s to '40s, Stapel said that some were made as early as the 1850s. "It wasn't until the sewing machine was invented, that a sturdy seam could be sewn to keep the feed inside," she said. "Before that, they used barrels, boxes, and tins to store things. But it was much easier to throw a feed bag over a horse than to use a wagon for hauling.

During the Civil War, the South cut off the cotton shipped to the North. Imported jute from India was used for burlap feed bags. After the war, cotton was again used for the feed bags and remained in vogue until sanitary laws encouraged the use of paper.

While Stapel declines to give an average cost per collectable feed sack, she did say that sacks printed with Walt Disney characters sell from $25 to several hundred each. Sacks with the draw strings still intact generally garner more money.

The Feed Sack Club is planning to hold its first convention at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge on April 7 to 8 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

"It will be an informational show with feed sack exhibits and vendors who will trade, sell, and buy feed sacks," Stapel said.

The Feed Sack Show coincides with the eighth annual Quilters' Heritage Celebration held at the Lancaster Host Resort Convention Center, Lancaster.

Shuttle service will be provided between the two hotels for guests who want to visit both the quilt and the feed sack conventions.

To join the Feed Sack Club, send $10 with your name and address to Jane Clark Stapel, P.O. Box 4168, Pittsburgh, PA 15202.

Seamtresses picked patterns that came in florals, geometrics, and Walt Disney prints for their sewing projects.. They often used the company logo prints, too.

Money Management

"Taking Control of Your Money," was the presentation of Janice Stoudnour, the Family Living counselor for the Bedford County Extension Office.

Deciding on "needs versus wants," headed the list of money management techniques. "It's sometimes a difficult decision and must be decided upon by the whole family," explained Janice.

"Decide how you will save to purchase a new refrigerator, take a vacation, or an even bigger goal such as sending the children to college."

"Be careful how you use credit cards. Teenagers can easily get the message that a credit card is all it takes to buy whatever they want. Make certain they realize that when the credit card bill comes at the end of the month, the bill must be paid."

To make a good money management plan work, Janice suggested the following:

Choose a chief money manager. A plan runs more smoothly if one person is responsible for seeing that bills get paid.

Develop a record-keeping system. Try to keep one drawer for bills, receipts, insurance papers, tax records, and all other important information regarding money.

Develop a system for paying bills. Use either marked envelopes, setting money aside for each bill or, use a record book or checkbook to pay bills.

Develop a system for handling money. Keep your checkbook balanced.

Manage credit wisely. Don't overuse a good thing.

Be flexible. Realize that your needs and the economy is constantly changing.

The Language of Flowers

Speaking on designing a flower garden was Tony Blith, or the Blair County Cooperative Extension Office.

"Color is the key to planning," Tony suggested.

"You might choose to have flower beds of various pastel shades; a monochromatic garden of the same shade; or direct contrast.

"Once you have made this decision, choose the flowers which come in these shades, making certain to choose for shade or sun.

Finally, design your flower garden and lime the areas where you will put each color."

Other programs presented at the Dairy Farm Women's Seminar included "Safe Kids," by Carol Krizner of the Pennsylvania Department of Health; and "Food Safety—What Are the Real Concerns?" by Doris Krumenacher, of the Blair County office.

The day concluded by each of the 18 ladies attending creating a "tussy mussy," from dried materials provided by the extension office.

Bedford Extension Reaches Out To Area Needs

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

EVERETT (Bedford Co.) — "We at the Bedford County Extension Office experienced an extremely busy year," Susan Fox, one of the few women county extension/dairy directors in Pennsylvania, said at the recent annual meeting.

"We received more than 1,000 requests for information varying from homemaking to dairying problems."

Susan cites her most successful program in 1994, the "Scissor Cut Alfalfa Program," which generated more than 200 telephone calls.

"We went out into the fields every other day to take samplings of alfalfa and then did a lab analysis," she explains. "We used the local newspaper update line to provide the results."

"A Farm Safety project was another successful event with more than 85 farms accessing the information.

"In all of our programs we have tried to lean towards more participation," reveals Bedford's agent. "We are trying to get away from the old lecture type events."

"We've had some satellite teleconferences and farmers seem to be pleased with the results. We also offer some high quality videos."

Bedford County has a high number of woodland owners and the extension has provided support work through the Southern Central Council of Southern Alleghenies for woodland owners. A pro-ag group has been started in the county which has multiple purposes.

Another extension project in which Susan has become actively involved is the "Income Opportunities for Rural Areas," which is scheduled to be held in Bedford County in 1996.

Melanie Barkley is the extension 4-H/agriculture agent who was more than pleased with the pesticide update seminar she held last year. "We had more than 100 people there."

An annual Christmas tree meeting organized by Melanie brings about similar results with as many as 90 people attending.

Melanie also heads up the "Master Gardeners," program and has ten master gardeners inolved in the area.

As the 4-H advisor, she is proud of all her groups. Chapman's Run has about 50 members involved in bees, sheep, swine, and dairy projects.

The Shawnee Lakers keep busy with multiple community projects.

This past summer, Melanie, with the help of summer assistant, Genny Washington, organized a Summer Fun Club getting both town and country kids involved.

With four volunteer leaders, they met four days a week and had nearly 20 to 25 kids in attendance on a daily basis.

These two were also instrumental in getting the Solid Waste Authority to provide a grant for a Recycling Day Camp.

Highly successful "inschool programs," have included, "Me That I Am—Me That I Can Be" for seventh and ninth graders.

A career development program resulted in area students participating in an agriculturally based career tour.

Other programs were "Meet the Plants," and "Kids In Control. The letter was offered to children who arrived home with no one to greet them each day.

"We try to teach leadership skill and like skills and encourage 4-H clubs and kids to make presentations and learn cooperation," sums up Melanie.

Janice Stoudnour heads up the Family Living division of Bedford County Extension.

Her parenting programs have been very popular with Janice organizing child-care training for people who run day cares.

She teaches self-esteem programs to kids and works with Melanie on the "Kids in Control," programs.

In a special financial program, training is offered to volunteers who, in turn, pass their newfound knowledge onto two others. Church and club members ave been enthusiastic attending for themselves and for sharing what they learn with others.

A Master Super Cupboard program helps those in search of food at local food banks to know what to look for nutritionally and how to cook what is offered.

In another "knowledge sharing" program, six hours of training is offered to volunteers on the super cupboard program to be taught to at least two other families. At least 58 people completed the first three hours of training.

This year's annual meeting/ banquet was held at the Everett Church of the Brethren. Officers for 1994-95 include Steve Wacker, president; Karen Kreiger, vice president; Thelma Albright, secretary; and Terry Moxley, treasurer. There are 20 local citizens on the board.

The One Spreader Big Enough For Poultry Litter, Rugged Enough For Lime.

The Stoltzfus Poultry Litter Spreader is specifically designed for the demands of this challenging job. The 20 foot hopper holds a whopping 400 cubic foot load, meaning fewer trips for you. The big 30-inch drag chain moves large volumes of litter fast. And the dual hydraulic spinners spread a wide, uniform pattern up to 40 feet wide.

But its real beauty may be its versatility. Now you can spread fertilizer, stockpiled lime, compost, poultry litter and more, all with one machine.

Long considered "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders, many Stoltzfus Spreaders are still in use after 20 years. That makes a Stoltzfus Spreader preferred not only for quality and performance, but also for terrific economy in the long run.

Sure you can settle for buying on initial price alone. But with a Stoltzfus Spreader you won't be shopping for another spreader just a couple years down the line.

As I write this article, spring is in the air and my husband is trimming our old apple tree. He has piles of limbs all over the yard. I'm not in a hurry for spring to come as I have many unfinished jobs to do in the house. One of them is to make a braided rug.

We had a minor earthquake in our area and I was surprised to hear my son, Philip, tell why he was glad. It seems that after weeks of having the silage "set up" it now flows freely due to the shaking that we received!

I'd like to tell you about a few more things that we saw in Florida recently. For a change we stayed in one hotel for three nights as we headed for Orlando. On the way our bus stopped at a large fruit outlet and we purchased grapefruit, oranges, and I even bought a coconut in its husk.

The day was spent at Sea World where we saw flamingoes, killer whales, sea lions, manatees and a tropical rain forest. Here we saw a water ski show before the evening dinner show at the Arabian Nights. Hundreds of people were seated around an arena where 60 beautiful horses performed 20 different acts. During this performance we were served a four-course banquet.

The next day we chose Epcot Center and walked from 10 in the morning to 6 at night. There were so many people trying to see the exhibits of Canada, France, Norway, and other countries so that we stood in long lines. The following day we traveled to Universal Studios Florida where television and motion pictures are produced. One terriffic ride that we took was called "Back to the Future-The Ride." It seemed to take us through fire, into a dragon's mouth and dropped us from the sky at 80 miles per hour.

Next week I'll finish my account of our busy days in sunny and warm Florida.

American Dairy Association Recognizes Dairy Promoters

N.Y.—The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) named Lori Shaw, 1993-94 Delaware County Dairy Princess, and her court as the Robert S. Turner Dairy Promoters of the Year. Presented at the New York State Dairy Princess Pageant on Tuesday, February 21, this award recognizes a New York Countian who has done an outstanding job of promoting the dairy industry. Selection is based on the number and kinds of promotional activities conducted throughout the year.

Achieving 633 promotions, Shaw was assisted by Nichole Schaefer, alternate dairy princess, and dairy ambassadors, Jo Lissa Kenyon, Michele and Sandra Schaefer. They performed 98 school programs, recorded 457 radio and television public service announcements, wrote 15 newspaper articles, attended 16 farm meetings and participated in 37 other special events.

This year, the Promoter of the Year Award was presented in memory of Robert S. Turner, who served 10 years as president of ADADC and seven years as president of the national organization. Then called the American Dairy Association, the national organization merged with National Dairy Council under his leadership, creating the United Dairy Industry Association as it is known today. According to the 1981 fall issue of "Promotion Focus," Bob convinced many people that "milk promotion is not just advertising. It's a total promotion concept."

Bob believed that local dairy promotion was an important part of the "total promotion concept," and is the reason this award is presented in his honor. The outstanding efforts of the Delaware County promoters were acknowledged with a trophy and $500, provided by the Turner family and ADADC.

ADADC is an advertising and promotion organization representing dairy farmers in New York, New Jersy and Pennsylvania.

Late Blight Threatens Home Gardens

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—State Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius is asking home gardeners to inspect their plants and help stop the potential spread of late blight disease on potato and tomato crops in 1995.

"Late blight fungus caused the Irish potato famine of 1845," Brosius said. "We want to help farmers and gardeners stop this disease before it gets a chance to threaten the 1995 commercial potato and tomato crops."

New strains of the fungus have developed tolerance to a fungicide that has been effective for more than a decade. In 1993, late blight was found only in home gardens in Pennsylvania, but in 1994, these new strains, combined with weather conditions favorable for disease development, caused crop failures totaling between $4 and $4.5 million in Erie and Potter counties.

This disease also occurred in most areas of the United States and Canada where seed potatoes were produced, so low incidence of the blight fungus could accompany seed potatoes this spring.

The disease can occur at any time during the season when humid, rainy conditions occur, so gardeners should inspect their plants daily for brownish to purplish-black spots on leaves, leaf stems or stems.

Under favorable conditions, the disease develops rapidly. If late blight occurs on potato or tomato plants, spores of the blight fungus can move quickly to neighboring gardens or to commercial crops, resulting in crop loss.

Plants with symptoms of late blight should immediately be buried to avoid spread of the disease. Gardeners should contact their local county extension office to obtain the late blight management ciruclar for home gardeners.

Bucks 4-H

Teens from the BUTTS coalition (Bucks United Toward Tobacco-free Students) are teaching younger children how to avoid smoking cigarettes.

During the workshop "Joe Camel Wants You," which was part of the countywide Lead-On Conference, Bobbie Jo Dumire and Rachael Schweitzer, Perkasie; Sophia Histand, Sellersville; and Steve Pickett, Doylestown, helped youth identify target marketing by the tobacco industry.

The workshop, led by adults from the BUTTS coalition, focused on advertising campaigns, such as the cartoon character Joe Camel. Lara Ruesch, of Bucks County Council on Alcohol and Drug Dependency, reported that Joe Camel is as familiar to 6-year-olds as Mickey Mouse. Ruesch quoted additional facts from the Surgeon General's Report for Kids About Smoking.

Pat Freiler, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Doylestown, coordinated plans for the workshop with BUTTS coaliton members Sandy Sensibaugh, Bucks County Health Department and Diane Hudson Harris, American Cancer Society. Harris distributed Butts Are Gross posters to each participant. The posters were provided by the Pennsylvania Department of Health Tobacco Control Program.

Thanks to a reader who wrote that the carts may be purchased at K-9 Cart Co., 532 Newtown Rd., Berwyn, PA 19312 (215) 644-6624. Also thanks to O.M. Raith, York, who suggests she contacts the following to get the best advice in the country for the care of her dog: University of PA Veterinary Hospital, 3850 Spruce St. H1, Philadelphia, PA 19104, (215) 898-4680.

ANSWER — Shirley Jean Ash, Bridgeport, W.V., has a poinsettia that is still blooming. She wanted to know how to have it blooming by next Christmas. Thanks to Mrs. Linford Stauffer, Quakertown, who writes, wait until the blossoms die. Cut off the stems 8 inches from the bottom so the plant is 8 inches tall.

When it is warmer and no chance of frost, set the plant outside on the porch. Water when the ground gets dry.

On or before the first frost comes, about October, bring the plant inside and put it into a room where the lights are not turned on at night.

Keep the plant on the window sill or a stand near the window. Use a little fertilizer a few times and keep watering the plant.

WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO	COMPETITION
1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counter weights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales

TANCO	COMPETITION
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp." Once it "burps" the bale does not reseal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats or ramps available
6. Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.	Compare!
7. Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, and continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.	Limited product lines
8. Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.	Competition - Compare!
10. Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare!

HORSE SENSE

When it comes to horse knowledge, I consider myself lucky. I have more than 100 equine experts at my fingertips while sitting in my office at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

No, we don't have 100 county agents with horse expertise, but I do have a copy of the "Horse Industry Handbook," which is a most comprehensive guide to horse care and management. It is a research-based resource manual that is written, reviewed, and approved by equine experts from all over North America.

The manual is available from the American Youth Horse Council (606) 259-2742. Following are some educational topics for horse owners gleaned from the "Horse Industry Handbook."

Horse Barn Ventilation

A poorly ventilated barn or drafty barn puts a horse in an environment that can contribute to pneumonia and other respiratory problems. A properly ventilated barn has a minimum of drafts, but will have adequate air exchange to maintain horses in a healthy environment.

New horse barns should have at least a six inch ridge vent with a minimum 12 to 14-inch overhang and a vented soffit running the full length. A rule-of-thumb guide is to provide at least one foot of ridge to ventilation for each horse or stall in the barn.

There should be at least four to eight air changes per hour in an adequately ventilated barn. Other factors to consider include the prevailing winds, the number of horses, and climatic conditions such as strong winds and blowing rain or snow.

A special ventilation problem occurs when hay is stored above the stall. Unless provisions are made to allow air movement about the stall area, effective ventilation becomes reduced or non-existent in the stable part of the barn.

An air passage of at least 12 inches must be left between the wall and bales of hay stored above each stall to allow hot, moist air to escape from the area below. For fire saftey reason, it is usually recommended to store large quantities of hay in buildings not housing horses.

Hay Intake For Horses

All horses need long-stem forage for both physiological and behavioral reasons. If hays are the only source of forage, rations should include hay at levels of 1.5 to 2 percent of body weight per day.

Consult the following table to aid you in providing adequate hay to your horse according to its production stage.

Forage Intake Guide

Production State	Quality of Forage	Daily Intake % Body Weight
Maintenance	Average	1.5-2.0
	Poor	1.0-1.5
Growth	Excellent	2.0
	Average	1.5
Pregnancy	Excellent	1.75-2.0
	Average	1.5-1.75
Lactation	Excellent	2.0
	Average	1.5
Work: Light	Average	1.25-1.5
Medium	Average	1.0-1.25

Teaching A Horse To Trailer

It is obviously an unnatural event for a horse to be loaded into a horse trailer and transported. Therefore, the horse has to be trained to trailer.

Training horses to trailer at an early age, traveling with a quiet friend, allowing plenty of room for the horse, and teaching the horse to ride in various types of trailers are all factors that influence the trailering process.

Training a difficult horse to load can be a rewarding experience for the horse and horse owner. Positive, nontraumatic experiences are very important in teaching horses to haul safely and quietly.

There are several keys to successful trailering. Initial training for the horse at as young an age as possible, ideally as a foal. Teach the horse to load in a stock-type trailer. The horse will be much less apprehensive if it does not feel so confined.

Horses can be fed in the trailer while learning to load. Load the horse in the trailer, allow the horse to eat, and unload without transporting. This procedure will help the horse gain confidence and feel safe while in the trailer. Gradually, start transporting the horse and slowly increase the length of the ride.

Training the horse to trailer with a quiet friend helps eliminate stress for the new traveler. Teach the horse to load and haul on both sides, or front and rear of a trailer. Train the horse to load in both the ramp and step-up trailers. By varying the riding position, the horse will be able to load and ride in any trailer.

Your Horse's First Shoes

The horse's foot continues to increase in size until it is full-grown, at five or six years of age. If the horse is shod during the growing years, shoes should be reset frequently and progressively larger shoes applied as needed.

Ideally, growing horses should be shod only for short periods of time for showing or sales. It is customary to only shoe them in front for these purposes. It would probably be beneficial for horses to be shod all-around during these periods, especially if they are doing any work that would cause the feet to wear down faster than they grow out. Avoid waiting until the horse is sore to shoe it.

Generally, first shoes should be as light as will give the desired protection to the foot. Aluminum shoes are often used. A rocker-toe is most desirable on young horses to ease breakover and prevent forging. Forging is a fault of gait when the toe of the hind shoe strikes the bottom of the front shoe. Half-round shoes are also used on the front feet to ease breakover and prevent limb interference. Heavier shoes may be used to enhance the gait of show horses.

The IRS and Horse Tax Management

The IRS, in deciding whether a horse activity is a business, considers whether the operation is run in a businesslike manner. The IRS has several criteria. One is whether the taxpayer changes operating methods, adopts new techniques, or abandons unprofitable methods, based on the facts shown in the taxpayer's business records. In short, the IRS believes that if you are not interested enough to document where you made or lost money, you are probably not interested in money and therefore you have a hobby!

Convincing the IRS that a horse activity is not a hobby can be difficult. It can be difficult even if a horse activity shows a profit two out of seven consecutive years. In the determination of whether an activity is engaged in for profit, no one factor is controlling. But one of the most important factors indicating a profit motive is whether the taxpayer operates in a businesslike manner. A well-thought-out and documented plan, designed to improve profitability, contributes substantially to a "businesslike manner."

Of course there is much more to tax management than convincing the IRS that you are in business. Essentially, good tax management minimizes the tax obligation without reducing profitability. But that is impossible without good records. For examply, if this year's taxes will be particularly high relative to other years, buying ahead, paying current bills, considering alternative methods of depreciation on new equipment, and considering a number of other moves could all reduce taxes. They could, that is, if you have the records to see which moves are advisable.

How Much Is Too Much?

NORCROSS, Ga.—How much fertilizer can be applied directly in the seedrow? That's one of the most common questions of small grain farmers in the northern Great Plains and the Prairies today. The interest in conservation tillage and the development of airseeders which allow direct seeding of crops into standing stubble give farmers the opportunity to apply all their fertilizer at planting in a one-pass operation.

Small amounts of starter fertilizer at seeding is a proven practice in cereal production. It gets the crop off to a good start and improves yields. However, too much seedrow fertilizer can cause severe germination damage, delayed emergence, delayed maturity and yield loss. Urea nitrogen is of particular concern, although high rates of potash can also be injurious to germinating seedlings. Current recommendations in western Canada suggest seedrow nitrogen plus potash should not exceed 40 pounds per acre and that no more than 25 pounds per acre of urea nitrogen should be applied with the seed. These guidelines are good for grain drills which placed the seed and fertilizer in close contact but are proving too restrictive for newer seeding implements which place the seed and fertilizer in wider bands.

Recent studies have shown that seedbed utilization, or width of seed spread, is critical to how much fertilizer nitrogen can be applied with the seed. North Dakota researchers demonstrated that increasing the seedrow/fertilizer spread width can increase the tolerance of cereals to seedrow-applied nitrogen. Using a 6-inch row spacing, they found that seed in a 1-inch band (17 percent seedbed utilization) could tolerate 20 to 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre. When spread over 6 inches (100 percent seedbed utilization), it was found that 80 to 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre could be tolerated. Similar studies in Alberta have successfully applied two to three times current recommended N rates with no germination damage or yield loss in wheat, barley or canola by utilizing 50 to 75 percent of the seedbed.

Other factors influence actual rates that are safe to apply. These include soil moisture, texture, lime content, pH, salinity, organic matter, nitrogen source, crop type and seed quality. Crops tolerate more seedrow fertilizer when seedbed moisture is ideal, when clay and organic matter levels are high, and when soil lime and salinity levels are low. Seedbed moisture is most critical. Seedrow fertilizer rates must be reduced if seedbed moisture is less than optimum.

New application guidelines for differing seedbed utilization are available. However, use caution when attempting to place high rates of fertilizer in the seedrow. Actual safe amounts of seedrow fertilizer can only be determined with on-farm trial and error. Don't be afraid to fine-tune the guidelines to suit local farm conditions. Seedrow width and seedbed utilization can be manipulated but many of the other factors that affect safe rates are site specific, and can vary within any field, particularly on soils with rolling topography.

Seed-placement is one of the most efficient means of nutrient application...but beware of the risks. A cautious approach will help maximize fertilizer use efficiency and profits.

TIGHT FERTILIZER SUPPLY CREATES MANURE MARKETING OPPORTUNITIES

Leon Ressler
Extension Agent
Agriculture/Environment

Strong worldwide demand for fertilizer over the past two years has contributed to a substantial rise in fertilizer prices.

Nitrogen prices for the fall of 1994 were around 25 percent higher than the year before. Then an explosion at a nitrogen plant near Sioux City, Iowa in December added increased pressure on nitrogen prices. The plant produced about two percent of the U.S. nitrogen supplies.

In a good supply year, loss of that much production may have minimal impact, but in an already tight market the impact was significant. This has contributed to even higher prices for spring fertilizer. These high fertilizer prices combined with good weather are creating an excellent business opportunity for poultry farmers with manure to market.

Following several good marketing principles used in marketing any product will help you successfully market your manure. First, promote your product. Advertise! It is also important to understand your competition and be honest about your product's advantages and disadvantages.

Manure's primary advantage is low cost relative to fertilizer as a source of crop nutrients. Another advantage is that some of the nitrogen in manure will be available slowly over time. Manure also supplies micronutrients to the crops and organic matter to the soil. Offering manure test information to potential buyers is very important.

See Table 1 for guidelines on developing pricing for manure. Offering custom application service will open new opportunities and give you equal footing in an area which was in the past a main advantage of your competition.

You need to honestly face your disadvantages as well. These include hauling cost, inability to custom-match a particular nutrient ratio required by a field, and compaction from heavy application equipment.

In order to assist suppliers and receivers to redistribute manure in southeastern Pennsylvania, I have been putting together lists of each group. Each year I update the list and send a list of suppliers to the potential receivers and vice versa. The lists are organized by county and township to enable you to find those on the matching list nearest to you.

If you are interested in participating, contact me at Penn State Cooperative Extension, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster PA 17601-3184, (717) 394-6851.

Note: This calculation assumes that the crop requires all the nutrients in the manure. However, your soil test may show, for instance, that your corn field requires only nitrogen. In that case, you could only justify paying for the nitrogen in the manure if you were buying it.

Table 1
How Much Is Manure Worth?

1. Determine the current market price for N, P_2O_5, and K_2O for your area and use those prices in the following example formulas.
2. Use a manure test to determine the N-P_2O_5-K_2O content of your manure. If no manure test is available, use book values in the agronomy guide.
3. Use Table 2-14 in the 95-96 Agronomy Guide (available from your Penn State Cooperative Extension Office) to determine the N availability factor for the manure nitrogen under your management system.

For Example: A poultry layer manure sample has a nutrient content of 38 pounds of N, 48 pounds of P_2O_5, and 25 pounds of K_2O per ton. The manure will be spring-applied and incorporated within one day. The value per ton would be:

38 lbs. N X .50 (Availability Factor) X $0.25 per lb	= $ 4.75
48 lbs. P_2O_5 X $0.22 per lb.	= $10.56
25 lbs. K_2O X $0.18	= $ 4.50
	$19.81

Ephrata Area Young Farmers Meet

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.)—Duane Hobbs from Dupont and Tara Soper from Ciba hosted a dinner meeting at Family Time Restaurant for members of the Ephrata Area Young Farmers and other interested farmers.

Luke Burkhart, from Pennsylvania Dept of Agriculture, stated the successful completion of disposal of any chemicals that were no longer useful. The proper disposal of containers was explained. Some 50 individuals participated in the program, and questions were answered relating to the most effective use of crop aids to environmental and economical situations.

Ephrata Area Young Farmers recently hosted a meeting at Durlach/Mt Airy Fire Hall where some 125 persons were informed by John Schwartz, Lancaster Extension director, on the importance of the Clean and Green Act and the economic impact it has on assessment and the requirements needed for participation.

After a lively question and answer period, everyone was more knowledgeable of the impact of Act 319.

The next monthly meeting will be April 11 at 7:30 p.m. at Earl G. Martin Farm, 250 Royer Road, Ephrata. Rob Kauffman, research manager for Brubaker Consulting, will provide the training in a Pesticide Sprayer and Corn Planter Calibration Seminar. This is open to the public.

Southeast Compost Program In Third Year

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—The Recycling Education Program, a Penn State Cooperative Extension effort aimed at keeping recyclable organic materials out of landfills in southeastern Pennsylvania, will celebrate the start of its third year this May.

"Since May 1993, we've promoted backyard composting and larger-scale composting for landscapers, farmers, and businesses," said Sally Pick, recycling education director for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Montgomery County. "We also give technical assistance to municipalities and other medium- to large-scale composters."

The program also helps connect generators of excess organic materials with people who recycle or compost organics. The program's "Directory of Organic Material Recycling and Composting" lists 50 Pennsylvania sites that presently or in the future will accept organic materials.

Along with part-time assistant Dorothy Thomas, Pick oversees the county's Master Composter program, one of two in the state. "So far, we've educated 36 people about backyard composting," she said. "They in turn commit to 20 hours of community service work, usually teaching others to compost."

"After the last of three training sessions, we build a compost education park," Pick said. Montgomery County now has three such parks, which feature different types of compost bins filled with materials such as leaves and grass to show composting in action. Pick plans a variety of special events at the parks for the 25th annual Earth Day, April 22.

"Each park always offers visitors a self-guided tour of compost bins and the composting process," she said. "There are also fliers about bin construction and a brochure on the how-to's of composting."

The Recycling Education Program also participates in applied research to show the simplicity of making and using compost. A collaborative effort with the Rodale Institute is evaluating how well a passively aerated windrow system (PAWS) composts manure on farms. This simple composting method originally was developed for composting fish wastes in Canada.

Another project, supported by the Ben Franklin Technology Center of Southeastern Pennsylvania, studies compost as a potting mix. "We're seeing how well geraniums perform in three different potting mixtures to see if the compost has a beneficial effect," she said.

Pick, along with extension agent Nancy Bosold and a consultant, also will evaluate the effects of compost applied to vegetable crops this spring and summer. "We want to compare compost-amended fields to fields without compost to see if there's any difference in insect and disease control," she said.

Last summer, Pick helped a local scout troop establish a system to compost their camp's cafeteria waste. This summer, she plans to help a local church begin composting. "The congregation has a community garden they use to grow food for food banks, homeless people and others who need it. It's a chance to help needy people while showing these home gardeners the benefits of using compost."

For more information about the Recycling Education Program, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension in Montgomery County, 1015 Bridge Road, Suite H, Collegeville, PA 19426-1179, (610) 454-1245.

Fund Seeks To Support Forestry Projects

WARREN (Warren Co.)—The Sandy Cochran Memorial Fund is seeking applications for the funding of educational projects that will support good forest management and the forest industry in northwestern Pennsylvania and southwestern New York.

The Cochran Fund was established in the memory of Roe "Sandy" Cochran, a former Penn State forestry extension agent. According to Ray Miller, a consulting forester from Warren, "Cochran was widely known and respected. He stressed the importance of continuing education and understanding by all those involved in forestry, from independent loggers to mill operators, from those in education to those in state and federal government."

Susan Stout, project forester with the U.S. Forest Service, points out that "Cochran's vision for the forestry community included safe work procedures, the application of best management practices in the forests, the cultivation of promising markets for local forest products, the development and application of the most recent research results and technologies, and the creation of a policy environment created by informed political leaders." According to Stout, the Cochran Memorial Fund is intended to support projects that further these ends.

Two recently funded projects include an Allegheny National Forest Forestry Forum for the forest community sponsored by the Allegheny National Forest Coalition which represents users of the ANF and support to the 1994 Warren Area Loggers and Sawmillers Safety Competitions. Each application must show the connection between the proposed project and the purposes of the fund. The deadline for submission of all project applications and supporting information is May 15.

Applications for funding can be obtained from: The Sandy Cochran Memorial Fund, c/o Forestry Sciences Laboratory, PO Box 928, Warren, PA 16365.

Mycorrhizae: Important Partners In Plant Nutrition

NORCROSS, Ga.—Most crops are mycorrhizal. The normal plant root is colonized by beneficial mycorrhizal fungi. Hyphae or filaments of these fungi can be 100 times longer than the entire plant root system.

The symbiotic association between plant and mycorrhizae consists of an exchange of energy for nutrients. The plant trades energy in the form of carbon compounds for mycorrhizal assistance in the uptake of nutrients including nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, sulfur, magnesium, manganese, copper, zinc, calcium and iron. The positive effects of mycorrhizae on water uptake can reduce crop moisture stress.

Mycorrhizae enhance plant phosphorus nutrition. These fungi extend the volume of soil surrounding each plant root where nutrients are absorbed. The funi also produce enzymes that help convert organic phosphate compounds to plant-usable forms, produce organic acids that mineralize phosphorus and interact with bacteria to solubilize phosphorus from soil minerals. They are involved in both the weathering of insoluble phosphorus and in the transport of phosphorus from the soil to the plant.

The role of mycorrhizae in enhancing phosphorus availability differs substantially from that of bacteria (rhizobia) involved in biological nitrogen fixation. The host plant-mycorrhizal association is less specific than that of legumes and rhizobia. Crop plants are colonized by a wide range of mycorrhizal species.

Mycorrhizal enhancement of phosphorus availability is not usually sufficient for the nutrition of the host plant in soils with low phosphorus levels. Phosphorus fertilizer may be more effective in supplying phosphorus to the plant than mycorrhizal infection, but the two sources also work together.

Mycorrhizal colonization potential can decline in soils. Fumigation, flooding, severe erosion or extended periods of bare fallow may reduce the soil's potential for carrying mycorrhizae of benefit to the crop. In Australia, wheat phosphorus and zinc deficiencies after long fallow were attributed to the loss of mycorrhizal colonization because of the absence of host plants during the fallow period. A similar "fallow syndrome" has frequently been noted in corn following fallow in the western Corn Belt and Great Plains. In Nebraska, corn grown in a fumigated soil showed phosphorus deficiency symptoms that were alleviated by reintroducing mycorrhizae into the soil at the time of planting. In Iowa and Missouri fields where crops were killed by flooding in 1993, mycorrhizal colonization potential was reduced and starter fertilizer was needed to avoid phosphorus deficiency symptoms in corn even when phosphorus soil tests were high.

Mycorrhizal species of greatest importance to agricultural crops cannot be propagated in the absence of growing plant roots. Although inoculum of nitrogen-fixing bacteria can be economically mass-produced and applied to seeds of legume crops, the mycorrhizal fungi important to field crop species cannot. Fortunately, most soils have a ready supply of these fungi, and there is a premium for using farming practices that favor the maintenance of mycorrhizal populations. Mycorrhizae have a wide range of crop hosts and, therefore, have great potential to affect crop population and sustainability.

Don't forget your partners! But remember, lack of these partners may require starter fertilizer phosphorus, even when soil phosphorus tests are high.

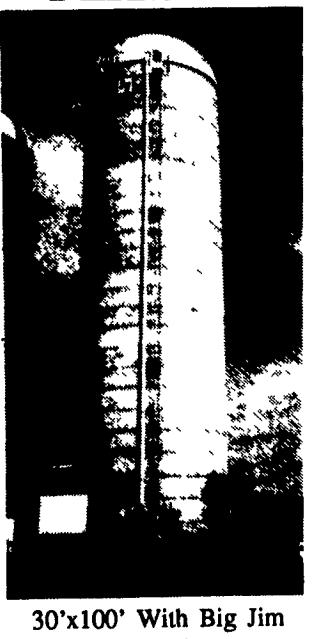
"THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING FEED STORAGE"



30'x100' With Big Jim Drive Thru

"The Big Jim is doing a fine job bringing the feed down. We really believe the drive-thru, Big Jim System is worth anyone's consideration. It is costing more every year to grow forages and we feel our minimal quality and quantity losses are easily paying for the additional initial cost of this investment compared to that of a bunker. We are throwing no feed away and the cows are milking the best they ever have." (over 90 lbs. per cow.)

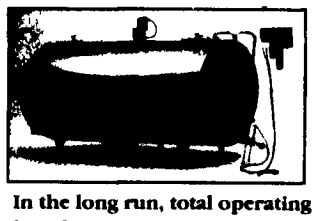
DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Offer
Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994.



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

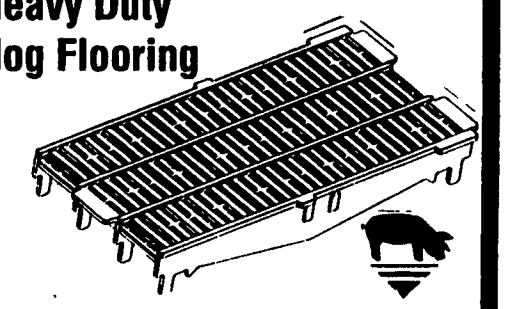
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? ☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven

This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Farocx has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction

POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- ◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- ◆ More piglets survive until weaning
- ◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- ◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
- ◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

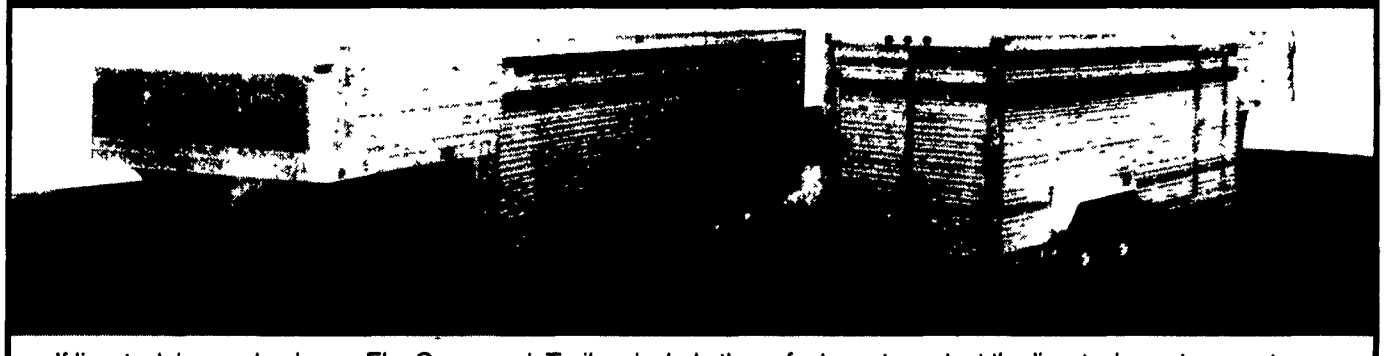
Anything Less Isn't Good Enough



If livestock is your business, Eby Gooseneck Trailers include these features to protect the livestock you transport:

- Durable all-aluminum construction with less weight for more payload
- Axles, wheels, tires and brakes that are designed to carry the weight the trailer will hold
- Gates and doors designed for easy loading/unloading
- Proven post and slat design to control airflow and easily close up for winter conditions
- Aerodynamic design to improve fuel economy

Eby Gooseneck Trailers are available in lengths from 12 to 32 feet with a choice of widths and inside heights. We offer every custom option, including stainless steel front end for great looks.

Whatever kind of livestock you transport, you can rely on EBY products to do the job right.

Ag Engineering Students Weld Their Way Through College

NEWARK, Del.—The roar of a welding torch and the whirring of drills assault the ears as you enter the University of Delaware agricultural engineering lab in Worrilow Hall. Undergraduates are intent on carrying out their professor's design plans for machinery that could revolutionize the way that processing vegetables are harvested.

John Filasky, a sophomore in the College of Agricultural Sciences, is earning tuition money. Having worked on his family's farm machinery in Middeltown, making adaptations, repairs and maintenance, he was a good candidate for Dr. Jim Glancey's machine project.

Ben Postles, another sophomore, also qualified for Glancey's machine shop. Postles has been adapting farm equipment on his family farm in Milford since he was 10 years old—building a carrot line to sort and clean carrots and modifying a no-till drill for pea planting.

Glancey, a professor of agricultural engineering, hired both undergraduates to work on plans he designed for improving machinery used by the vegetable-processing industry. Filasky is working on a small-scale cleaner for peas and lima beans. Postles is making an attachment for a harvester. Funded by a college competitive grant and the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, the adapted machinery will be ready to test this June.

But why a cleaner and a harvester?

"Right now about 10 percent of what enters the processing plant is debris that's being hauled in from the field," Glancey said. "Large vegetable-processing plants can use in excess of one million gallons of water a day cleaning the harvested product. In the Delmarva region, even cutting the amount of water needed by 10 or 20 percent would add up to millions of gallons of water saved."

Glancey has designed a small-scale cleaner for use in the field that will follow a three-step process: a dry shaking in a sieve to separate the pods and debris, an air blast that blows out the leaves, a spray that uses the minimum amount of water needed to wash out the dirt. He also designed two attachments for a harvester donated by Draper-King Cole Inc. These attachments will gather more of the crop while picking up less debris from the field. A brush-like attachment will allow for a cleaner lima bean harvest and a belt-like attachment will be used when harvesting peas.

"My approach and philosophy is that students have ideas, but they don't have the analytical tools, the methods, or the knowledge of materials available to them," Glancey said. "Hiring undergraduates gives them an opportunity to get involved in a practical project that will develop their technical skills while they are learning analytical skills in course work."

Both students are already reaping benefits from the project.

"Since I started working, it's been easier to understand what Dr. Glancey is saying," Filasky said. "Once you start thinking along his lines, it makes sense."

Postles also has been pleased to have some of his design concepts endorsed by his professor. "In this project I'm actually coming up with some ideas and Dr. Glancey approves them," he said. "The project makes you think in a more practical sense."

Postles sees another practical use for the project.

"This kind of work is a good thing to have in your back pocket," he said. "It's a resume builder. I'll be glad to have done it down the road. Plus, I like doing it."

Are Micronutrients 'Weak Links' In Fertility Program?

NORCROSS, Ga.—An important part of a balanced fertility program includes being sure that secondary and micronutrients are not yield-limiting. Soil testing is the place to begin. Deficiencies of secondary nutrients such as sulfur and micronutrients such as zinc can limit responses to other nutrients and result in lower yields, higher cost per unit of production, and lower profitability.

Sulfur and zinc should receive special attention as high-residue, conservation-tillage production systems are more widely utilized. Large amounts of surface residue insulate the soil, keeping it cooler and wetter longer in the spring. Both of these factors plus soil compaction hamper early plant growth, making it more difficult for the developing plants to obtain the nutrients they need.

Nutrient stratification can also be a problem in conservation tillage etc. With little opportunity for physical incorporation, applied nutrients such as zinc may concentrate near the soil surface. The limited early season development of roots at the soil surface where applied zinc accumulates results in lower nutrient availability than might be predicted through soil sampling procedures which include the zero to 6-inch soil layer. Sampling and analysis of the surface 2 or 3 inches of soil can detect nutrient stratification and allow corrective management decisions such as the use of starter fertilizer.

Much of the soil's potentially available sulfur is associated with organic matter. Plants take up sulfate-sulfur which is leachable and may move down out of the surface soil with winter precipitation. Cool soil temperatures limit release of sulfur from organic matter. That fact combined with winter leaching suggests that inclusion of sulfur in starter fertilizers for conservation tillage may eliminate potential early season shortages and give plants a better chance for rapid growth and development.

High phosphorus availability can limit plant zinc uptake. Phosphorus-containing starter fertilizers banded close to the row can enhance phosphorus uptake. If zinc is already borderline deficient, the increased phosphorus uptake can cause the zinc problem to become even more severe. If soil tests suggest that additional zinc is needed, including some of the zinc in starter fertilizer is a good way of meeting plant needs.

Be sure that your best management practices for conservation tillage crops include determination of sulfur and zinc needs.

Bull Test Results Released

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced the final results of the 22nd Annual Bull Performance Testing Program.

The bulls finished the 112-day testing program on Feb. 28. The bulls have been scanned ultrasonically to determine fat thickness and to get an estimated loineye measurement. The bulls have been measured for hip-height and have undergone a very comprehensive breeding soundness examination, which included semen collection, scrotal circumference, and pelvic measurements.

The bulls will have health papers to go anywhere. For anyone concerned about the recent BVD problems, these bulls would be the safest bet available for adding outstanding genetics with the most safeguards available. These bulls were blood tested for BVD and have had two BVD vaccinations prior to arrival at the test station and they were given another booster after coming off test.

The breeders who have bulls consigned to the testing program are required to be involved with an on the farm performance testing program, and consequently the bulls have complete EPD's available.

The sale committee has met and selected the bulls to be sold in the sale, which is scheduled for Friday, March 31.

There will be 24 Polled Hereford bulls offered in the sale. The top-indexing Polled Hereford is the G.R. Fed Ex 500z son from Ralph Strouse of State College. This bull posted the top average daily gain of his breed with a 4.40 pounds per day gain and has very good EPD's. This growthy bull also recorded the top Polled Hereford EPD Index.

The second highest indexing Polled Hereford is the FPP First Priority 28U son consigned by Bernie and Debbie Chubbuck of Laceyville. This bull gained 4.13 pounds per day gain on test and recorded an adjusted yearling weight of 1,310, all with a low birth weight EPD of +2.8 pounds.

There will be 19 Angus bulls offered for sale. The two top-indexing Angus bulls are owned by Darron Smith of Kempton. The R & J Prospector 341 son that indexed 119, recorded the fastest average daily gain of all breeds when he gained 4.99 pounds per day through the 112 days on test. This high growth bull also recorded the second lowest birth weight EPD with a +2.8 pounds birth weight and was the bull the second best herd efficiency (3.90 pounds of feed per pound of gain) of the 73 bulls completing test this year.

The T.C. Stockman son that indexed second among the Angus gained 4.80 pounds per day on test. This rapid growing bull had the second largest pelvic measurement and the second best feed efficiency among the Angus.

There will be 11 Simmental bulls made available in the sale. The top-indexing Simmental bull is the Grand Desire son consigned by Bruce Laidig. The bull was the fastest gaining Simmental and the most efficient bull of all breeds on test, posting a feed efficiency of 3.74 pounds of feed per pound of gain. This E.T. bull posted a yearling weight of 1,330 pounds and is smooth polled.

The second highest indexing Simmental is the Highwayman 33T son consigned by Messick Farms of Middletown. This low-birth weight bull gained 4.51 pounds per day on test and was the second most efficient Simmental with a feed efficiency of 4.22 pounds of feed per pound of gain.

The two Charolais in the sale were both consigned by Bratton Charolais Farms, McVeytown. Both Charolais are smooth polled and have 14-inch plus loin eye measurements.

There is a lone Limousin bull in the sale. This attractive bull, owned by Slab Cabin Farms, State College, gained 3.42 pounds per day on test and posted a yearling weight of 1,156 pounds.

Finally, the evaluation center has a Beefmaster bull. This low birth weight and high pelvic area bull was owned by John Lehr and Buzz Upton and gained 3.50 pounds per day on test.

Following the bull sale, the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association will hold their annual awards banquet and membership meeting starting at 6 p.m. at Toftrees Resort.

The following morning, April 1, will be the Cattlemen's breakfast starting at 7:15 a.m., followed by an Educational Conference and Production Workshop.

For more information on the bulls, the bull sale, or the educational conference, contact Glenn Eberly, Director, Pennsylvania's Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Rd. State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527.

Look At Seed Labels

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley reminds farmers to look closely at the labels on seed containers and to know what the labels mean.

"Many farmers think they've purchased 'certified seed' when in fact they may not have. There is a real difference between an analysis label, which shows purity, germination and other information required by law, and a certification label, which verifies that the seed meets the standards of the state certification agency whose name appears on the label. Often, the certification label also contains the information normally shown on the analysis label," Riley said.

Certification labels are blue with the words "Certified Seed" appearing prominently. This means that the seed has passed field inspection and laboratory testing requirements set by that state's certification agency. The Maryland Department of Agriculture's Turf and Seed Section is responsible for seed certification in Maryland.

The primary purpose of seed certification programs is to ensure the genetic purity of the seed. Most certification programs, including those of Maryland and surrounding states, also include strict standards for purity, noxious weed seed content and germination rate.

"Farmers should look for the blue certification label. It is their assurance that the seed has been inspected, tested, and approved by an official seed certifying agency," said Riley.

For more information on seed certification, contact the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Turf and Seed Section, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (410) 841-5960.

1995 Dairy Of Distinction Farms Sought

Kingston (Luzerne Co.) — Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your dairy farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy Of Distinction Program of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will consider your farm for the program's annual recognition awards.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program was first started in 1983 to recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintain attractive farms. The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, and increase their sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by. The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas and manure management are other aspects of the farm operation taken into consideration. Roadside judging is conducted during the month of May. Former winners of past years are also rejudged to ensure they continue to meet the standards of excellence.

To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk. Applications are available from your state secretary, Pennsylvania: Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., 239 Schuyler Avenue, Box 5 , Kingston, Pa. 18704, (717) 283-2204, New York: Carol Weddle, N.Y. Holstein Association, 957 Mitchell Street, Ithaca N.Y. 14851, (607) 273-7591, or New Jersey: August Knispel, R.D. 1, Box 325, Pittstown, New Jersey 08867, (201) 735-4989. All applications muse be completed and returned by April 15th, 1995.

The Dairy of Distinction program is financed in Pennsylvania by Dairy Farmers through the American Dairy Association Dairy Council and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, plus Agribusiness organizations. The Pennsylvania Dairy Of Distinction Program is conducted with advice and help by Penn State cooperative extension.

HOW IS YOUR FARM SCORED?

Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc.

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance and other factors which can be controlled by the farmer. Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging. All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane). Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy products or dairy farming. Farmers who apply for awards agree that; if selected they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition.

HOW THE APPLICATION WORKS

The owner or operator of the dairy farm should sign the application and send it to NEDFBP secretary by April 15.

HOW THE JUDGING WORKS

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May. Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis. Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign. The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer. All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent on their Dairy of Distinction score card. Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

RULES FOR THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION AWARD

1). The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Committee.
2). The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer. It is suggested that a wood post 4' x 4' x 12' or iron pipe 2' x 12' be used. Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground. Top of the bracket shou'd be lower than six inches from the top of the post.
3). Sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside. An attractive post and bracket, or other frame, shall be used to display the sign. No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign. Sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage.
4). Signs shall not be moved to other premises. New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign.
5). Replacement of damaged signs shall be the discretion of the committee.
6). No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expense.
7). Judges' decisions will be final.
8). Judging will take place between May 1st and May 31st.
9). Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1st and April 30th. If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1st and May 31st so they have the opportunity to keep the sign.
10). Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee.

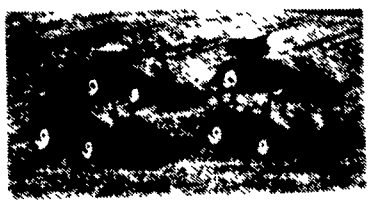
Mid-Range Tractors Versatile

ATLANTA, Ga.—AGCO Allis has placed a renewed emphasis on its mid-range and utility tractor line by introducing two new tractor models ideal for the small to mid-sized farmer. Also introduced were six new loader models, specially designed to fit the current lineup of AGCO Allis tractors.

"The new AGCO Allis 5650 and the 5660 will make fast work of almost any task, from loader work to mowing hay and spreading manure," said Dennis Heinecke, general marketing manager for AGCO Allis tractors. "They're extremely versatile and maneuverable for the smaller operator but powerful enough for most utility applications on a larger farm."

Rated at 45 and 55 PTO horsepower respectively, the 5650 and 5660 parallel the performance of the current 63-horsepower 5670 and the 72-horsepower 5680 tractors. For example, both models feature an advanced design 1000 Series three-cylinder, air-cooled engine, as well as hydraulic-actuated wet disc brakes and an inboard planetary final drive.



Six new AGCO Allis loader models, specially designed to fit the current lineup of AGCO Allis tractors, add versatility and productivity to any size operation.

Both units also come in a choice of two-wheel-drive or all-wheel-drive and offer a synchromesh transmission with 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds and standard forward/reverse shuttle shifting. All controls are located to the right of the operator for extra comfort and convenience.

Finally, the 5650 and 5660 come with a category II 3-point hitch and a total hydraulic flow of 16.8 gallons per minute to handle most any 3-point hitch or loader application.

One Of Largest Crops Now Heating Fuel

ARDEN, N.C.—Carrol Buckner, inventor of the famous Buck woodburning stove, has designed a heating system which uses shelled corn as fuel. This new source of energy, which can be replenished in four months every year, is the new fuel for his recently introduced SnowFlame Corn Stove.

Carrol foresaw the day when the federal government and individual states would impose strict regulations on burning wood and other solid fuels. This is happening now. He also saw rising insurance rates and insurers actually refusing to insure houses with wood stoves. So Carrol moved on to pioneer an exciting new industry.

The SnowFlame Corn Stove provides a way to use the millions of tons of corn surplus available in the United States and throughout the world. "We have had this energy source available to us all along. It's time that we use it and make ourselves energy independent. And we support our farmers," Buckner says.

The appearance of the SnowFlame Corn Stove is similar to that of a wood burning stove. It has a built-in hopper which holds up to a bushel and a half, or approximately 85 lbs., of corn. The UL listed SnowFlame Corn Stove is so clean burning, no chimney is required.

The SnowFlame Corn Stove can heat an average size home for approximately a bushel of corn per 24 hours. Additionally, the control America has over this new fuel is tremendous because it is non-polluting, easy to handle, readily available and renewable. And, because of the design of the SnowFlame Corn Stove, the fuel flow can be controlled allowing the user to keep his/her home at a comfortable temperature around the clock.

Power Shaft Windmills Big Step Backward?

NORTH BENTON, Ohio—O'Brock Windmill Distributors of North Benton, Ohio recently converted an Aermotor water pumping windmill from reciprocal action to rotary power shaft, for running an oil skimmer at an oil refinery.

The American windmill was born in South Coventry, Conn. in 1854, invented and patented by 28-year-old Daniel Halladay. The windmill industry grew very large during the last half of the 1800s and well into the 1900s. Windmills helped settlers move West, pumping water for homesteads, towns and steam locomotives.

Shortly after the reciprocal water pumping windmill was invented in 1854, there were also power shaft windmills being made by the same companies. These power windmills were used to operate sawmills, gristmills, shelling corn, grinding grain for livestock, churning butter, and actually running lathes and machines in factories.

Some of the wind wheels on these windmills were as large as 60 feet.

At one time there were hundreds of windmill manufacturers. They still pump water for cattle, ponds, irrigation and farms.

The power shaft windmills have not been made for more than 50 years. So is the current use of power shaft windmills at a modern, high tech oil refinery a big step backward? Or is it good common sense to use a low cost, dependable wind powered machine that has zero environmental impact to get the job done?

TORRANCE, Calif.—Kubota Tractor Corporation has introduced integral cabs for the L3600 and L4200 Grand L Series models, delivering maximum comfort, safety, and operating performance.

An independent structure completely separated from the engine compartment, the new Grand L Series integral cab offers exceptionally quiet comfort, and is sealed and soundproofed to further reduce noise.

Key safety and performance features include ROPS certified all-steel construction, hydrostatic power steering and quick-tilt steering wheel, two steps to two doors, under-hood muffler and exhaust pipe, air conditioning, heating, locking door handles, an adjustable seat with a retractable seat belt, dual hydraulic remote valves, front and optional rear work lights and optional radio/cassette player.

The Grand L Series cab models feature a full-floating, ISO-mounted platform and hanging-type pedals designed to provide plenty of legroom while minimizing deck, seat and steering wheel vibration. The new, low-noise design of the flat deck is independently supported by rubber cushions and fully separated from the tractor engine and body, thereby reducing operator fatigue.

Kubota Tractor Corporation's new integral cabs for the L3600 or L4200 Grand L Series tractors are designed to deliver top performance for farm, utility, and turf applications. Designed as independent structures completely separated from the engine compartment, the new Grand L Series integral cabs offer exceptionally quiet comfort and are sealed and soundproofed to further reduce noise.

Maximize Returns Through Balanced Fertility

NORCROSS, Ga.—Any time is the right time to maximize returns on investments in fertilizer. Changes in fertilizer prices don't change agronomic facts...that plants still require adequate nutrients for optimum yields and that optimum rates of nutrient application are relatively unaffected by prices.

High profit yields are the product of balanced programs...matching high yield management with high yield fertilization. You can't put together a system of best management practices including the right hybrid or variety selection, the right seeding rate, the right row width, the right planning date, and timeliness of operations with a fertilizer program that supplies less than the needed amounts of nutrients.

Adequate phosphorus is essential in a best management practice production system...even when costs are higher. With adequate phosphorus, nitrogen use efficiency increases, nitrogen carry-over decreases, yields increase, grain moisture is reduced, production costs per unit decline and profits rise...a fact even at higher phosphorus fertilizer costs.

It's the same story for potassium...another key to efficient nitrogen use and corn profitability. Increasing use of conservation tillage has placed greater emphasis on potassium and its role in reducing plant stresses while boosting crop yields and profitability. University data show that potassium is a bargain...and an essential input.

Soybeans, like corn, require adequate nutrients for top yields. Soybean responses to higher soil test levels and direct fertilization are impressive. It's the same story as for corn...higher yields mean lower costs per unit of production and higher overall profitability. But higher yields demand more nutrients...and remove more nutrients from the soil. More nutrients leave the farm when those higher yields are sold. Maintaining productive capability requires replacement of those nutrients...particularly phosphorus and potassium.

Fertilizer represents a relatively small percentage of the total cost of crop production. It takes a large change in fertilizer rate to have much impact on the total cost of growing the crop.

Balance is the key. Provide the nutrients the crops need. Know your nutrient needs and meet them for highest yields and profits.

KELDERMAN AIR RIDE

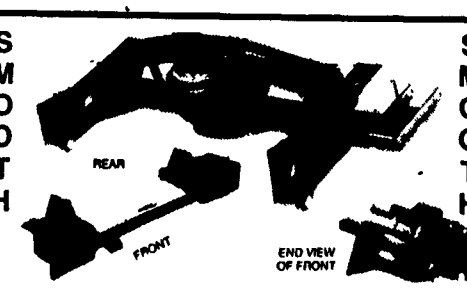
SMOOTH



SMOOTH

Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system

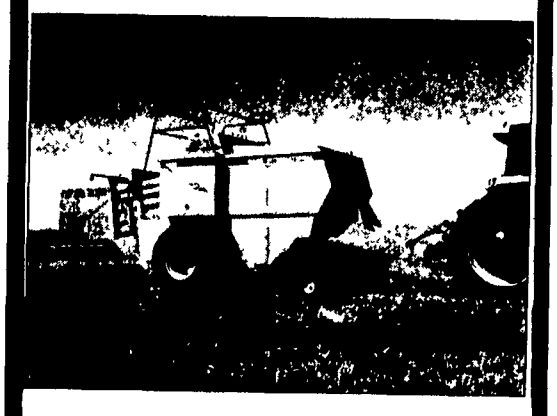
JUMBO BALES



A Case International 8580 large rectangular baler makes JUMBO bales - up to 2,000 pounds.

It compresses hay equivalent to about 40 conventional bales into a single high-density package. The high-end capacity and performance of the 8580 means you can push these big bales through the machine all day - every day. That's a lot of hay.

And it's quality hay, too. The center-line design handles the crop gently to preserve nutritious leaves. The bales are uniformly shaped for efficient handling and shipping.

The 8580 also has a full list of standard features. Low-profile pickup, pre-packer chamber, massive gearbox, heavy-duty components throughout, electronic monitoring, double-tie knotters and low maintenance. And it's simple to operate.

The Case International 8580 is a JUMBO value, too.

Mesh Wrap Attachment

Studies have shown that losses from handling and spoilage for a round bale stored outside can be as high as 30% more for a twine-wrapped bale as opposed to a bale wrapped with mesh. Mesh wrap serves as a barrier to moisture absorption. As a result, quality losses resulting from decomposition are reduced.

Mesh wrap also reduces losses during bale handling and transporting and because fewer turns are produced when wrapping versus tying with dual twine arms (2 to 2.5 wraps vs. 10 to 15 turns), there is significant savings in the time required to finish a bale.

- 8455 Tractor Hydraulic • 8465 AUTOMATIC
- 8465 Tractor Hydraulic • 8460 after Pin CFH0057418

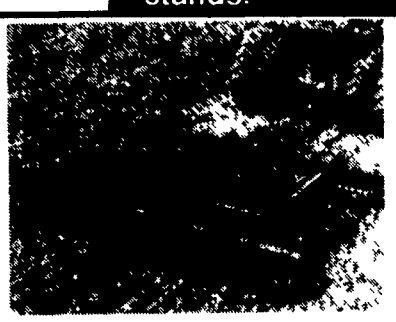
Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc. Has A Culti-Mulcher With Quality Features

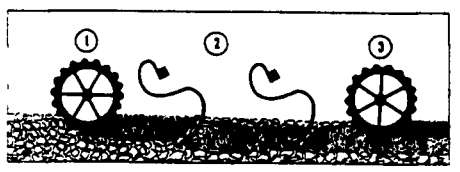


Weight Transfer is needed on some fields for best mulching results. Unique Farmhand system allows weight to be distributed between the front and rear rollers and the draw bar as needed.

Bearings on torsion-mounted hangers and roller tool bars combine with split roller axles to isolate shock loads. Up to 12 triple-lip sealed, self-aligning ball bearings are used on the main frame of each machine.

Complete Seedbed Preparation in One Pass

Here is how Farmhand Mulchers prepare perfect seedbeds in a single pass. (1) Surface clods are crushed into small particles by the front rollers. (2) Buried clods are then brought to the surface by two rows of lopped "C" tines or Danish vibrating tines. (3) The rear set of rollers crumbles these clods, firms the seedbed, presses out the air pockets and leaves a fine seedbed for planting.



Mulching Makes You Money

Mulching your soil gives you better yields in two ways. First, loosely packed seedbeds with many clods allow moisture to evaporate quickly through the air pockets. Lost moisture reduces the speed of germination and gives your crops a less efficient start. Mulching creates a finer, clod-free seedbed with few air pockets and gives your crop a uniform start throughout the field. Moisture rises at just the right rate from the water table below to the seedbed.

Secondly, the small roots of sprouting seeds need a ready supply of soil nutrients. Feeder root systems of small plants in poorly prepared seedbeds cannot break through the clods and reach out for nourishment. Mulched soil allows the feeder roots to reach out in all directions. Thus, nourishment flows through the roots to build strong, fast-growing plants that give you better yields.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Has A Quality Gehl Spreader In Stock And Ready For Use Now At Economical Pricing!

Low profile design means easy loading by skid loader front end loader or barn cleaner

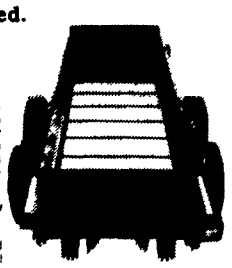
Gehl-Tuff Flooring prevents the apron from freezing to the floor allowing manure to slide out with little resistance. Less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains. One piece construction won't flex under heavy loads

Extra-strong, T-bar apron chains with an average tensile strength of over 23,500 pounds keep the biggest loads moving

Double Galvanized steel sides are corrosion resistant for long life. One-piece seamless construction won't catch material or leak

Optional hydraulic endgate rests in front of the beater paddles to secure sloppy loads and keep heaped material out of the beater until you're ready to spread. An available liner pan reduces spills in the yard or roadway while enhancing the spread distribution

Oscillating tandem wheels allow faster ground speeds while providing greater flotation. They're standard on the 325 bushel and 425 bushel models and optional on the 250-bushel model



Twelve extra wide one-piece beater paddles are symmetrically positioned for broad, uniform spreads. Paddles are fabricated from tough 1/4" thick high strength steel. Bolt on replacement tips are available to extend paddle life

Constant velocity pto for continuous smooth chatter free power transfer when spreading on turns and reduced stress on the entire drive line

Model MX125 And Model MX170 In Stock

In fact, you'd probably have a hard time convincing Gehl Mix-All® owners to even look at anything else. And why should they?

The Mix-All's big 21-inch wide hammermill features 66 reversible thin hammers that cut, rather than pound the feed to deliver a more consistent grind and ensure uniform mixing for a better feed conversion rate.

Gehl's self-contained hydraulic system is designed-in, not added on. It provides the precision of infinitely variable in-feed attachment control to match tractor power for greater grinding capacity. Plus you get fast, smooth, trouble-free unloading with greater reliability.

And a wide variety of options and attachments lets you customize your Mix-All to fit any operation.

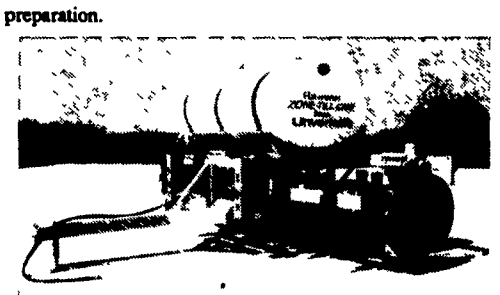
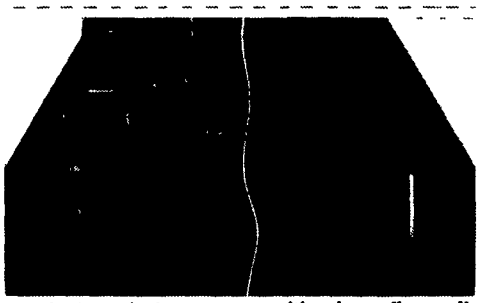
The Rawson Zone-Builder™ digs down and through hardpan to create a passage that allows plant roots and soil moisture to move freely into the subsoil.

Is Zone-Tillage an acceptable practice for conservation compliance programs?
Yes. It meets all requirements for soil conservation and residue management while still allowing the producer the opportunhity for conditioned seedbed preparation.

The Rawson Zone-Till Cart is the quick switch to Zone-Till. It can be attached to your existing planter or drill in just minutes, without modification to your equipment.





The ideal seed-placement position is on firm soil at the base of the tilled zone as shown above. Liquid or dry fertilizer can be placed on either side of the seed.

CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want

—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Spin Dry.

Wet weather is less of a threat to your valuable hay crop with Kuhn's Gyrotedder. Its gentle fluffing action speeds up hay's natural drying time.

The Gyrotedder is easy to use and gentle on your crop. Excellent ground following for quality tedding even on difficult terrain due to the land-hugging articulating chassis and adjustable wheels. Wheel height adjusts without the use of tools instantly adapting rotor angle to crop density.

And for the ultimate in reliability and ease-of-use several folding models are equipped with Kuhn's exclusive Digidriver multiple finger coupling.

Kuhn offers the largest selection of tedder sizes available with 11 models from 10 to 28 in trailed or three-point mounted versions.

Other Kuhn products that yield full value from your crop include

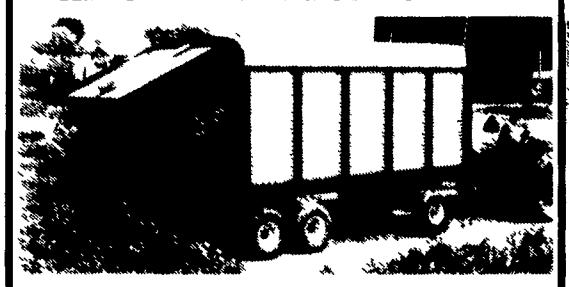
MILLER PRO

New Equipment For Farming In The 1990's

THE ULTIMATE FORAGE BOX



Defining the standards for innovation and durability in forage box design.

- Flexible Engineered Formed Steel Construction gives our forage box integral strength, with dynamic tolernace to flex as terrain and load varies. Our forage boxes were tested in the roughest, wettest conditions we could find.. and they will withstand stresses caused by changing loads and field conditons.
- Consistency of Speeds is a major advantage of our 4-speed positive gear transmission. Control is smooth and predictable, and the Model 5100 clean out is faster than most boxes on the market. Variable speed drives on other manufacturers' forage boxes cause the apron speed to fluctuate as a result of the ever-changing load.
- Clutter Free Design removes bulky wood and steel structures, for a clean and open appearance. and a lower center of gravity.
- Oven Cured Primary and Finish Coating assures superior corrosion protection, and makes this the best looking forage box on the market.

HYDRAULIC DUMP BOXES

- Large Capacity - Up to 1,100 cubic feet and 24,000 pounds dumping capacity.
- Low Loading Height - Works with most standard harvesting equipment
- High Dump Height - 11 foot clearance fills most trucks or semitrailers with ease.
- Fast Cycle Time - Unloads in less than a minute.
- Rugged Dependability - All steel construction and reliable slaved-cylinder hydraulics.
- Easy Operation - Automatically lifts, shifts and dumps

MODEL 1100 ROTARY RAKE

Miller-Pro brings you this revolutionary product, designed and made in the United States, to meet the changing demands of the modern North American farmer

- Hydraulic Height Adjustment - Exclusive hydraulic control at tractor eliminates dismounting to set height
- Gentle Raking Action - 11 cam action tine arms gently lift and release crops with no roping and minimum leaf loss
- High Raking Capacity - Wide stance rakes a 10'-6" swath, with up to a 13'-5", working width, speeding field completion time.
- Well Formed Windrows - Crops are piled smooth and fluffy, even on hills or curves
- Smooth Turns - Constant velocity power take-off driveline assures even windrow formation and maneuverability.
- Maximizes Crop Harvest - Rotary tines stay on cut areas longer than traditional rakes, picking up more crop.
- Rugged Design - High strength steel, enclosed machinery components, durable bolted swath curtain and totally engineered design assure long life

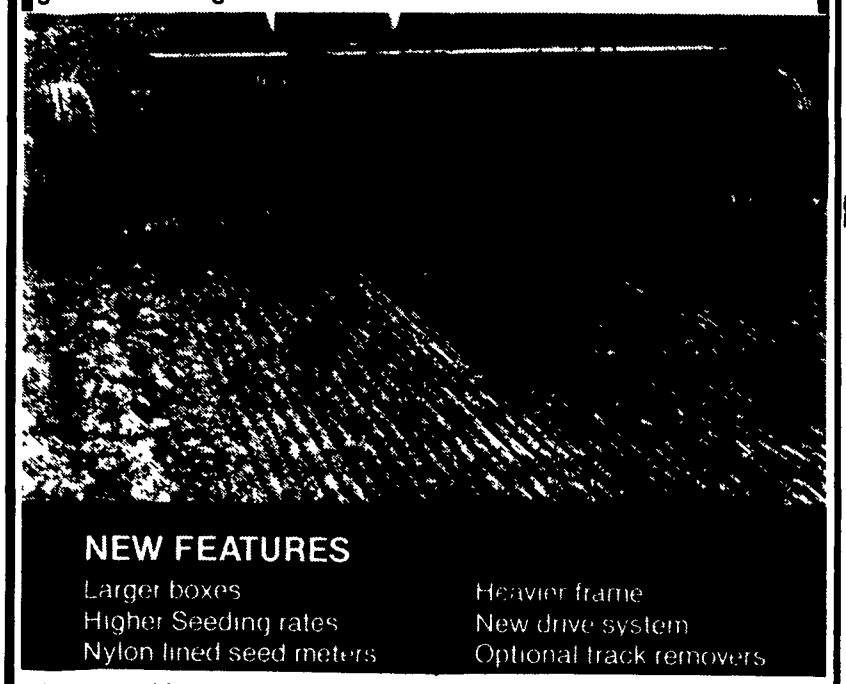
Save up to 50% on grass seed with a Brillion "Sure-Stand" Seeder. Recognized the world over as the best seeding method for planting grasses and legumes.



NEW FEATURES

Larger boxes	Heavier frame
Higher Seeding rates	New drive system
Nylon lined seed meters	Optional track removers

Grass seed is a very expensive commodity. By properly placing the grass seed in the top ½ " of a properly prepared seedbed you will realize maximum seed germination.
Because of Brillion's precision placement of the seeds, seeding rates can often be cut to nearly half of the rates previously used. In many cases the savings in seed alone will pay for a "Sure-Stand" Seeder in just a short time.

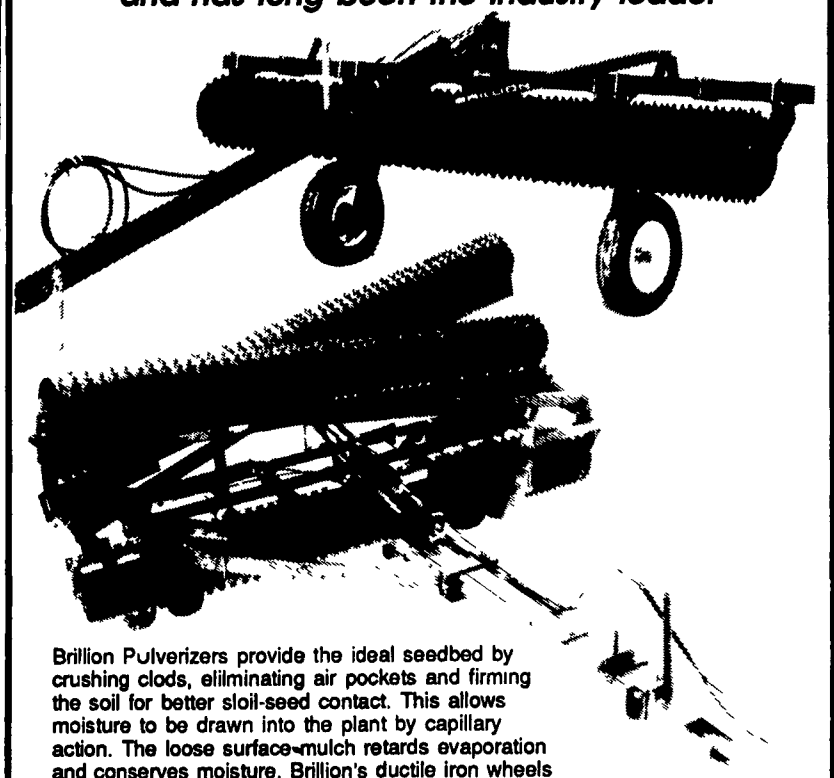
THE PULVERIZER LEADER
Brillion has manufactured pulverizers since 1895 and has long been the industry leader



Brillion Pulverizers provide the ideal seedbed by crushing clods, elilminating air pockets and firming the soil for better sloil-seed contact. This allows moisture to be drawn into the plant by capillary action. The loose surface-mulch retards evaporation and conserves moisture. Brillion's ductile iron wheels are 2.5 times stronger than gray, cast-iron wheels used by other manufacturers and carry a five-year limited warranty.

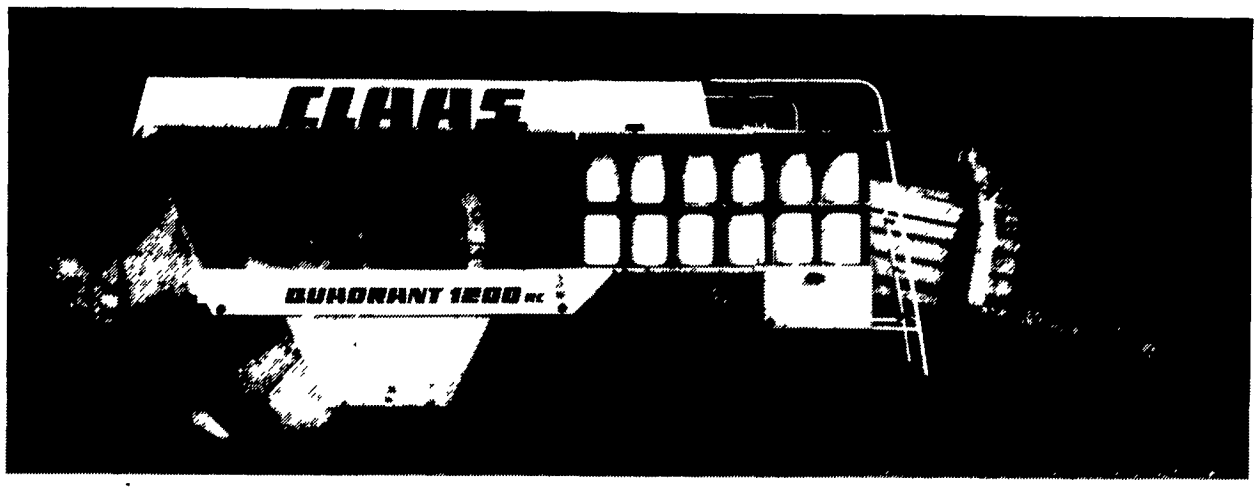
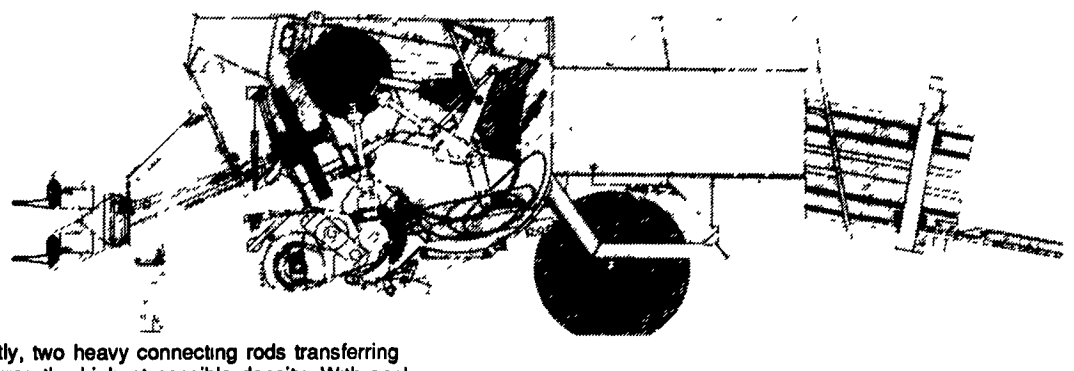
No nonsense design, clear drive systems



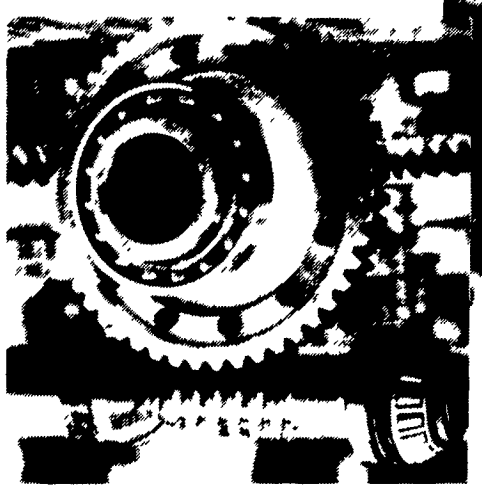
The CLAAS QUADRANT 1200 is particularly appealing since its design is remarkably straightforward, despite its size and output. Every component is arranged for ease of service and accessability. The side panels swing up easily, assisted by gas-filled dampers.

A constant power flow is maintained accomplished by the heavy flywheel ahead of the main drive unit. It smooths out peak loading and takes the strain off both the tractor transmission and drive shaft.

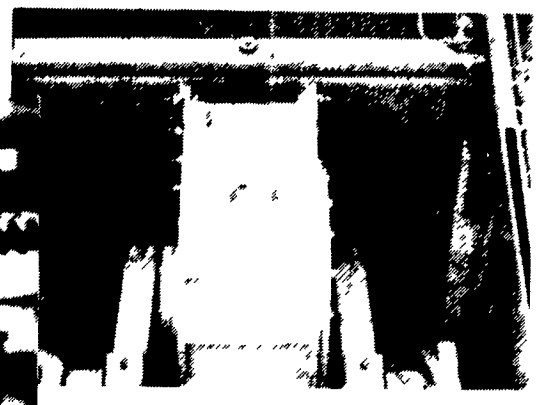


The drives are clearly arranged and carefully matched to one another. The main worm drive transmits the power to the feeding and cutting units plus the knotters. No chains are used, reducing wear and improving precision of operation.

The ram is driven directly, two heavy connecting rods transferring all the power. This ensures the highest possible density. With each stroke, a clean cut is made by the segemented knives and the shear bar, which can be easily adjusted.



The rotor, feeders and knotters are shaft driven by a double angle drive. No chains, no slippage and positive drive
Power transmission is reliable and precise thanks to the hardwearing worm and gear reduction drive which safely reduces the PTO shaft speed of 1000 rpm to a powerful 46 ram strokes per minute, handling the high torque loadings with ease



The heavy duty crown-wheel and pinion drive distributes power from the tractor to the ram, packers, knotters an pick-up. The main gear box is effectively protected against overload

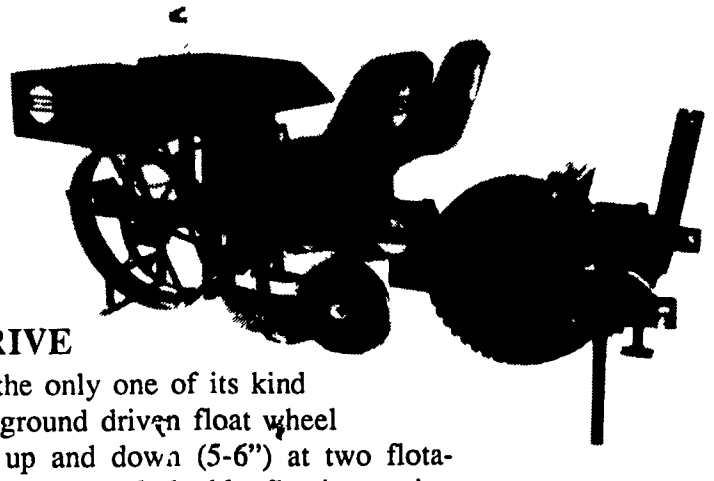
MECHANICAL TRANSPLANTER MODEL 1000

For The Grower That Demands The "VERY FINEST"

The High Performance Model 1000

has increased planting speeds 20 to 30%.



OUR PATENTED FLOAT WHEEL DIRECT DRIVE SYSTEM is the only one of its kind available. This ground driven float wheel moves straight up and down (5-6") at two flotation points. This patented double floating action maintains correct ground contact at all times for both the drive wheel and rear packing wheels letting the units float independently no matter how many rows. No weight of any hitch, toolbar, or water tank is resting on the drive wheel to compact the soil. The wheel just smooths, firms and ideally prepares the soil providing accurate plant placement, proper depth control, and positive spacings from 6" and up in all soil conditions.

State Board Preserves Farmland

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board approved easement purchases for 24 farms in 14 counties, protecting 3,225 acres of prime farmland from development.

Pennsylvania ranks second in the nation in the amount of farmland it has safeguarded against development through conservation easements — 63,939 acres on 509 farms in 37 counties.

Under Pennsylvania's Farmland Protection Program, which began in 1989, the state and counties purchase development rights to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land. Landowners apply to county agricultural land preservation boards. If approved for possible easement purchase, the county boards may request state funding participation. Counties may participate jointly with the state in easement purchases or may purchase easements outright themselves.

Following are the properties approved, listed by county, owner, township, acreage, and development rights purchase cost:

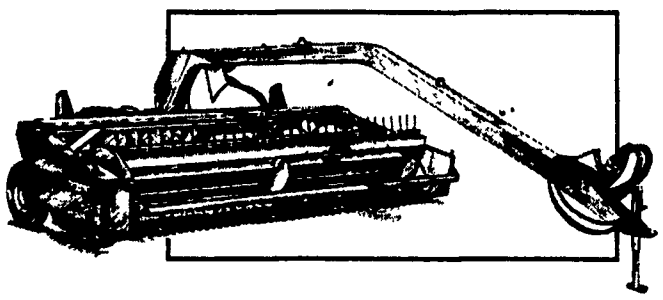
GEHL®

CUT 'N TURN



Gehl swing-frame mower conditioners are designed to cut your biggest hayfields down to size. Gehl swing-frames give you the capacity and maneuverability of a self-propelled mower conditioner at a pull-type price. Gehl also makes conventional sickle-bar models as well as disc mower conditioners.

Gehl's swing-frame mower conditioners feature:

- Full-width conditioning rolls with intermittent ribs.
- Total hydraulic drive for smooth operation.
- Center-pivot design for excellent maneuverability.
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar.
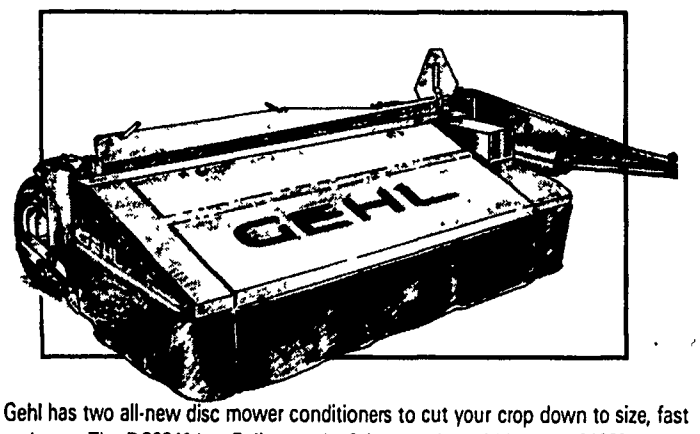
- Easily adjustable for full-width swaths or high-standing windrows.

CUT HAY THE DISC WAY!



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width; the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10-1/2 foot cutting width.

- High speed discs – Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame – Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue – Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.

Sales Manager's Note
Dairymen if you need milk and top of the line breeding, don't miss this sale. The Yoders have worked hard building this herd and only because of relocating to Illinois is this herd being dispersed. This is without a doubt one of the best herds being dispersed this spring. Make sure to attend this sale.
